

Edna Ratliff

DONOR HIGHLIGHT

Soon after moving to Oklahoma City to attend business school, Edna Ratliff joined the Liberty National Bank staff in the 1930s and quickly made her mark in an industry she worked in for nearly 50 years. And, she left her mark on the community with a charitable bequest to the Oklahoma City Community Foundation.

During her 48-year career with the bank, Miss Ratliff was highly regarded by her co-workers and assumed the role of teacher and trainer for many of the younger trust officers. Her expertise led her to becoming one of the first female trust officers in the state. When she made her estate plans, Miss Ratliff wanted to repay a community where she had found such a rewarding career and had made her home. Thanks to her charitable bequest, the Edna Ratliff Fund continues to support the nonprofit organizations she cared about.
