OUR MISSION

The mission of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, a nonprofit public charity, is to serve the charitable purposes of its donors and the charitable needs of the Oklahoma City area through the development and administration of endowment and other charitable funds with the goal of preserving capital and enhancing value.
Our Vision

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation values integrity, stewardship and collaboration. We strive to be enlightened leaders with a long-term perspective of community issues and opportunities, and we encourage and assist donors’ philanthropy for the benefit of the community.
On behalf of the Trustees and staff of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, it is our pleasure to share with you the Fiscal Year 2012 Annual Report.

This report provides an opportunity to update you on the activities of the fiscal year ending June 30, 2012 as well as to honor and recognize donors whose contributions have built the community’s endowment.

We are pleased to report that there were 76 new funds established during the year and that we received gifts totaling $23.6 million. Both of those numbers are the most in each category since 2008. Total grants for the year were $20.7 million and we ended the year with our highest ever year-end market value of assets of more than $632 million.

While encouraging new gifts and processing grants is a very important part of who we are as an organization, we also make an impact through collaboration and leadership on issues affecting our community. We ask that you read the highlights of our efforts in a variety of areas during Fiscal Year 2012 on page 10.

We appreciate each and every donor who has made one or many gifts to funds we administer. Both individually and collectively, your contributions make a positive difference in our community.

“To whom much is given, much is expected.” This is the guiding principle behind Justin and Kelly Brown’s charitable giving and a value they hope to pass on to their children, Hannah and Ford.

“We are looking forward to the day when the kids can contribute some of their allowances and we can sit down as a family and discuss where we want to focus our giving,” says Justin.

Both graduates of Bishop McGuinness Catholic High School in Oklahoma City, Justin and Kelly married soon after graduating from Oklahoma State University. After working for several years in the banking industry, Justin is currently the chief executive officer of Choice Capital Partners, a real estate/private investment company in Edmond. A former elementary school teacher, Kelly says her true passion is helping individuals in need and in 2003, she helped found the MS Bridge, a nonprofit organization that connects multiple sclerosis patients in financial need with medications and other resources they may not otherwise have access to.

Justin has been involved with a number of charitable organizations, serving on the board of directors for the Oklahoma and Arkansas Chapter of the Alzheimer’s Association, Leadership Oklahoma City and the Oklahoma Zoological Society. Justin says that he and Kelly have enjoyed becoming a part of the nonprofits they support and hope to instill this level of involvement in their children. In 2011, the Browns established an advised fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation through which they recommend grants to organizations such as the Special Olympics Oklahoma, Sunbeam Family Services and the Oklahoma Zoological Society.

Established in 1954 by a group of community leaders including the founder of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation John Kirkpatrick, the Oklahoma Zoological Society was originally known as Friends of the Zoo. The nonprofit organization was created to support and promote the Oklahoma City Zoo and its programs. With this support, the Oklahoma City Zoo has become one of our community’s great treasures and in 2012 was named the third best zoo in the nation.

“The investment being made in the children of Oklahoma City through our zoo is tremendous. We are so proud of our city and it’s exciting to be a part of the great things going on at the zoo.”

Many poignant experiences have shaped the life of Ernestine Clark. And as a result, the former teacher and longtime employee of Metropolitan Library System, has spent much of her life giving back.

Already a community volunteer, in 1995 Ernestine was appointed by then Oklahoma City Mayor Ron Norick to serve on the initial task force organized to begin planning for a memorial following the bombing of the Murrah Federal Building. Eventually, she would serve on three committees: archives, survivor definition and security committees. She was one of the first 20 individuals invited by the surviving families to train as a volunteer for first the Outdoor Symbolic Memorial and then the Memorial Museum. Through her experiences with the memorial, Ernestine became an ardent supporter of the citizen support groups for Oklahoma City’s fire and police departments.

Because of her work with survivors and families impacted by the Oklahoma City tragedy, in 1997 she was one of 15 people, including survivors, who were chosen to travel to Cameroon in West Africa to spend two weeks with survivors of a 1986 volcanic eruption that killed more than 1,700 people. The group’s tour guide, Sule, had lost 50 family members in the 1986 tragedy. He survived only because he was at the market. He made such a deep impression on Ernestine that by the time the Cameroon survivors, including Sule, traveled to Oklahoma City the next year, she was able to present him with a scholarship to attend Oklahoma State University, her alma mater.

“I wanted to help pay back all the wonderful attention and help the world gave Oklahoma City after the bombing,” she explains. Ernestine and Sule’s story is included in the book “The Unfinished Bombing: Oklahoma City in American Memory” by Edward T. Linenthal.

While working for the library system, Ernestine played a large role in creating both the Friends of the Library, a nonprofit organization that raises funds for the library system through an annual book sale, and the Library Endowment Trust. Both organizations have permanent endowments administered by the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. She credits this experience in part to her decision to establish the Ernestine Hill Clark Smart Start Foundation In Memory of Erick Morrow In Honor of Dana Morrow, Elliot Clark and Alice Clark in 2012.

“I’ve learned so many valuable things from the staff through my association with the library’s endowment funds and I viewed with a trained eye the impressive backgrounds and qualities of the people serving on the board,” Ernestine says. “Somehow a seed was planted that I wanted to be a part of an organization that truly does so many significant things in this community.”

Dana Morrow lost her son Erick when he was just 19 years old. Although Ernestine never met Erick, she wanted to honor his memory in respect of her good friend.

“Ernestine was the one person who would always remember not only his birthday but also the day he died,” Dana says. “I have never met anyone like her and am eternally grateful for her kindness. She is an exceptional human being.”

Through the fund, Ernestine wants to assist children in getting the best possible start in life resulting in a higher literacy rate for Oklahoma. She also will focus on assisting parents who she notes are the first and best teachers for their child. That is music to the ears of Stacy Dykstra, executive director for Smart Start Central Oklahoma that is part of Oklahoma's statewide early childhood initiative that seeks to provide better opportunities to children and families.

“Our work at Smart Start Central Oklahoma aligns perfectly with Ernestine’s objectives to support parents as the first and most important teacher and to make sure young children get the “smart start” they need and deserve,” Dykstra says. “Together, we will continue this quest to strengthen our community through investments in our greatest assets – our young children.”

“I have never met anyone like her and am eternally grateful for her kindness. She is an exceptional human being.”

Jim Meade can trace the beginning of his interest in fine arts to when he was a chemical engineering student at Carnegie Institute of Technology (Carnegie Mellon) in Pittsburgh. He says that while Carnegie Mellon was primarily an engineering school, it also had a reputable fine arts department. Mr. Meade adds that the Oakland District in Pittsburgh, where the university is located, is also home to two fine arts museums.

“It was surprising the interaction that took place between students of different interests,” he recalls.

As CEO of Meade Energy, an oil and gas producer headquartered in Oklahoma City, his interest would continue to develop and be encouraged by his wife, Virginia, who shares a similar interest in the arts. Throughout their marriage, the couple has visited nearly all of the fine arts museums in the United States and many in Europe. Eventually, the Meades began collecting 18th and 19th century American paintings as well as 17th and 18th century English and American silver and furniture. They were struck by how museums in this country and Europe were loved by residents and visitors alike. This inspired the couple to support efforts to create a fine arts museum in Oklahoma City. At one time, Oklahoma City was home to two art museums – the Oklahoma Art Center and the Oklahoma Art Museum. After the two groups merged in 1989, Mr. Meade served as the first board president of the Oklahoma City Museum of Art and is a lifetime trustee.

Mr. Meade says during his early association with the museum, he was aware that the most stalwart supporters, John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick, were accomplishing their giving through the Oklahoma City Community Foundation and that in later years, their daughter Joan and grandson Christian K. Keesee would follow in their path.

“It was only natural that as Virginia and I became able to increase our financial support in a meaningful way, we also chose to do it through the Oklahoma City Community Foundation,” Mr. Meade says.

While the Meades have directed a portion of their giving to Charitable Organization Endowment funds, the majority of their giving is for the benefit of Christ the King Catholic School and the Oklahoma City Museum of Art endowment funds. In 2007, they established the James C. and Virginia W. Meade Collection Fund, a permanent endowment fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to assist the museum in acquiring art for its permanent collection.

In addition, the Meades have loaned a portion of the family’s English silver collection to the museum. The pieces showcase a range of forms and evolution of styles from the 16th through the beginning of the 19th centuries, says Jennifer Klos, assistant curator, who added that highlights of the collection include a sweetmeat dish in the late Renaissance style, a Queen Anne coffee pot, rococo candlesticks and a neoclassical tureen.

To show its appreciation for Mr. Meade’s longtime support, in 2011 the museum established the James C. Meade Friends Lecture Series Endowment, a sub fund of the museum’s permanent endowment fund that supports the organization’s lecture series and other educational programs open to the public.

“Jim Meade and his family represent the type of donor that every group would like to have,” says Nancy B. Anthony, president of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. “Generous, involved, dedicated and truly committed to the mission.”

Fiscal Year 2012 Highlights

In 2010, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation Trustees adopted the following vision statement for the organization:

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation values integrity, stewardship and collaboration. We strive to be enlightened leaders with a long-term perspective of community issues and opportunities, and we encourage and assist donors’ philanthropy for the benefit of the community.

During Fiscal Year 2012, the following projects and initiatives helped fulfill our role of enlightened community leadership.

Collaborating to Develop a Parks Plan
We joined with the City of Oklahoma City to begin the process of producing a comprehensive plan for the city parks that will guide future development and uses for these vital city assets. More than just funding the plan, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation staff and Trustees have been active participants in the planning process, working with the city, school and neighborhood leaders as well as nationally-recognized parks consultants.

Helping to Improve Health Care for Uninsured
We funded and participated in an effort to design an improved health care system for the uninsured population that would address access to essential specialty services and better management of both individuals and health care resources. Our iFund Access to Health Care grant program complemented this effort with support for better management of chronic disease.

Providing Access to Higher Education
Our scholarship program continues to focus on increasing college attendance and expanding opportunities for individuals from graduating high school seniors to adults who want to complete their college degree. We are active participants in a nationwide effort to encourage degree completion and have provided access to information about higher education options through our website FinishMyDegreeOKC.org.

Connecting Charities with the Community
GiveSmartOKC might prove to be one of our most significant community leadership efforts. This Internet-based information portal will establish a directory of local charitable organizations and offer extensive information about their programs, governance and financial situation. It is a cooperative effort among the charities and will be an important asset for the entire community. It will also help charitable organizations meet the information needs of a new generation of donors. Read more about this program on page 11.

Fiscal Year 2012 Financial Highlights
$23.6 million in gifts
$21.7 million in grants to nearly 1,000 charitable organizations
$632 million in assets, our highest year-end market value to date

For more detailed financial and investment management information, please see pages 66-69.

Making Adult Literacy a Priority
We continue to make available two educational programs designed to help adults improve their literacy skills and/or study for the GED exam. We started Get Reading Oklahoma in 2009 and thanks to partnerships with both Oklahoma Educational Television Authority (OETA) and Cox Communications, we are able to make the programs free and accessible across the state. Our website GetReadingOklahoma.org also provides live streaming of the programs as well as information about adult literacy services in the state.

Helping Donors Help the Community
Our donors have continued to support these efforts as well as many of the own charitable interests through our various fund management programs. Our Trustees and our Investment Committee have provided important leadership to guide the services that we provide and the programs that help the community move forward. In every way we are looking for opportunities that not only support the charities with which we work with but to help them approach the future with the best plans, adequate resources and enlightened leadership.
Connecting Nonprofit Organizations and the Community

GiveSmartOKC is a comprehensive website providing a base of information about area charitable organizations to help encourage informed philanthropy within our community. Open to any public charity providing services in central Oklahoma, GiveSmartOKC offers charitable organizations the opportunity to highlight their commitment to transparency and provide up-to-date, in-depth information about their organization. The Oklahoma City Community Foundation staff verifies that information provided is current and the historical financial information is vetted by our accounting staff.

“Our goal with GiveSmartOKC is to promote awareness of needs and foster informed giving,” says Nancy B. Anthony, president. “Organizations are literally opening their file cabinets and sharing a level of information you won’t find on their websites.”

What You’ll Find
Each nonprofit profile features 62 required data points about four areas of nonprofit effectiveness: programs, management, governance and financials. Charitable organizations are required to answer questions about their policies and strategies, programs and key factors such as board support, tax returns, audits and revenue and expense ratios. All information on GiveSmartOKC is free to the public and searchable by a variety of ways including organization name, geographic location, interest area or keywords.

A Resource for Funding Organizations
As the only local resource of its kind, GiveSmartOKC provides an opportunity for area funding organizations to use the service in their grant-making processes. Beginning in 2013, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund will utilize GiveSmartOKC for its grant program and we hope other funding organizations will also use GiveSmartOKC for their needs.

“We believe that once we reach a critical mass on GiveSmartOKC, that we will be able to report back to the community on the health of the nonprofit sector in central Oklahoma,” Anthony says. “GiveSmartOKC will provide valuable information not currently available elsewhere. We appreciate the support and encouragement of both Allied Arts and United Way of Central Oklahoma to bring this resource to the community.”

From Central Oklahoma Charities to GiveSmartOKC
In our role as a community foundation, we know a lot about charitable organizations, especially those in central Oklahoma. We always check that a nonprofit organization is in good standing as part of our due diligence when processing grants recommended by donors. In addition, the more than 300 nonprofit organizations for whom we administer permanent endowment funds are required to provide us with updated financial and governance information each year. And, because we work with nonprofits on a day-to-day basis, we know a lot about their programs.

Since 1999, we have provided Central Oklahoma Charities, an online directory of the charitable organization endowments we administer on our website www.occf.org. Each organization had a web page that lists contact information, email and website links and provides a way to make credit card gifts online. For the past few years, we’ve realized that this directory needed to provide more information. We researched how best to accomplish this goal and also provide information on nonprofit organizations who we worked with but who didn’t have a permanent endowment fund with us.

In Fiscal Year 2012, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation partnered with GuideStar to provide GiveSmartOKC to central Oklahoma. GuideStar is a national online resource that connects people and organizations with information on the programs and finances of more than 1.7 million IRS-recognized charities and has a very good reputation in the nonprofit sector. Learn more about GuideStar at www.guidestar.org.

Ramsey Family/Blue & Gold Sausage Fund | 1979
While working as an agricultural education teacher and FFA advisor in the 1960s, Mr. Ramsey began processing the students’ pigs into sausage that the students would sell to fund activities. The idea of selling a high quality sausage product as a fundraiser took off and the family soon founded Blue & Gold Sausage Co. The Ramseys started an advised fund in 2001 to perpetuate their support of agricultural education scholarships and programs.

R.A. Young Foundation Fund | 2007
Born in Indian Territory in 1904, R.A. Young was an astute businessman who loved Oklahoma. He was one of the founders of TG&Y, a chain store company that had more than 920 U.S. locations when it was sold in the 1960s. Mr. Young was an active and generous civic leader. Through a bequest in his estate, a portion of his private foundation was transferred to the Oklahoma City Community Foundation and supports annual grants to charitable organizations including the public library in his hometown of Kingfisher.
When William and Margaret Davis started the William E. Davis and Sons food distribution business in the 1950s, it was truly a family business. The couple and their six children – three boys and three girls – had active day-to-day roles in the company. As the business grew, so did the family’s support of charitable causes and organizations in the community.

When the company sold in 1986, the family discussed creating a private foundation to continue their philanthropy. Instead, after consulting with their professional advisor, they decided that creating a permanent endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation was a better alternative. In 1987, the William E. and Margaret H. Davis Family Affiliated Fund became the first Donor Affiliated Fund created at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. With this milestone, the Davis family illustrated to other families and individuals in the community how they could accomplish their charitable goals without the worry of administrative details and reporting requirements of operating a private foundation.

Charles T. Davis, one of the six siblings, says after the sale of the company, his father wanted to continue giving back to Oklahoma City but in a larger way.

“This affiliated fund concept allowed us to develop an endowment for giving in the way we wanted to give,” Charles said. “The foundation gave us all the flexibility needed to achieve our philanthropic objectives and has been very cooperative in allowing us to enjoy and accomplish those objectives.”

Each year, the family gathers to discuss and make grant recommendations. Since the fund was established, the family has recommended grants in excess of $1.6 million to charitable organizations and projects that benefit the community.

One project the family has continually supported is the park system in Nichols Hills, especially the Margaret H. Davis Park. After selling the company, Mr. Davis sought a way to honor his wife, Margaret. The park was directly across the street from the family’s home on Larchmont Lane and was frequented by their children while growing up. Improvements were made to the park including a statue of children playing. The park was dedicated on July 13, 1988. Mrs. Davis was able to enjoy the park before her death in 1990.

“The park was an identifying part of our family, we all spent a part of our lives there,” said Charles. “The park provided my father the double benefit of honoring her while also creating a better park for public use.”

On average, the mission serves 410 people a day through providing shelter, food and social services including medical, dental and vision care. The mission’s Bridge to Life is a five-step recovery program that addresses issues relating to anger management, spiritual development, dealing with addiction, life and work skills and transition from homelessness. It is the state’s largest free drug and alcohol recovery program. The mission collaborates with more than 70 social agencies to meet the needs of its clientele. In 2012, in partnership with the Regional Food Bank of Oklahoma, the mission opened its Impact Hunger Food Resource Center that allows referred shoppers to self-select items.

Albers Family Affiliated Fund | 2006
Both graduates of John Marshall High School, Paul and Leigh Ann Albers returned to Oklahoma City in 2007. In 1991, he and two former colleagues founded a defense technology and homeland security oriented company that within 15 years grew to have over 500 employees. Leigh Ann graduated from the College of Nursing at the University of Oklahoma in 1978 and was active in nursing in Oklahoma City until 1995 when she and Paul were married. Paul’s company was acquired by a large defense contractor in late 2006. The couple established the Albers Family Affiliated Fund to support organizations and causes important to their family. The first grant from the fund established the Donald Albers M.D. Endowed Chair at the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine, Department of Urology, to honor and recognize Paul’s father. Dr. Albers practiced in Oklahoma City and was an adjunct faculty member at the college. Since the fund was established, nearly $2 million in grants have been made to charitable organizations with a focus on those that serve children.

Dr. Everett, a retired professor at the University of Oklahoma (OU) College of Medicine, also established the Mark R. Everett Scholarship for the benefit of a medical student in honor of his father, the former dean of the college, and the Alice Everett Cello Scholarship in honor of his mother. In addition, Dr. Everett used assets of a charitable remainder trust to create a fund in memory of Michael Adam Everett to assist in the education and treatment of youth with serious mental disorders. Although Dr. Everett died in 2006, his charitable legacy continues to support his motto of “having fun doing good.”

Claudia Holliman, an attorney and Morgan Stanley Wealth Management Financial Advisor, and John Holliman, a Professor of Pathology at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, view the world as their community. So when the couple talks about enriching the social, cultural and educational opportunities for their neighbors, they think on a global level. Through their fund, the couple recommends grants to support a wide variety of projects and programs. They are ardent supporters of the Oklahoma City-based World Neighbors, an organization that educates citizens of developing countries around the world on how to become self-sufficient and improve their lives as well as women’s rights groups in third world countries. Local grants help support animal rescue organizations, educational institutions, the Oklahoma City Philharmonic, the Oklahoma City Zoological Society, and other charitable and civic organizations. “Our fund gives us so much pleasure,” Claudia explains. “We are able to focus on supporting the groups we want without having to worry about the administrative details. It really is a simple and easy way to make a visible impact on the causes about which you are passionate.”

“Charitable gifting is very satisfying,” John adds. “We are also pleased that our Affiliated Fund will continue to benefit new generations long into the future.”

Gene Barth

A resident of Oklahoma City for 41 years, Gene Barth truly made an impact on her community. Originally from Birmingham, Ala., she attended the University of Oklahoma where she studied art history. In 1972, Gene married Oklahoma City attorney Ed Barth who says, “When she came to Oklahoma City, she was Ed Barth’s wife, and later on, I became Gene Barth’s husband.”

Gene’s involvement in community organizations was as widespread as her interests. She served on the board of directors for the Integris James L. Hall Jr. Center for Mind, Body and Spirit, the OU Health Sciences Center Breast Institute and Payne Education Center.

Ed says that his wife had a true vision and passion for supporting and promoting the visual arts. She was involved in many arts organizations including Oklahoma Arts Institute, Ballet Oklahoma and the OU Weitzenhoffer Family College of Fine Arts Board of Visitors. She was also a member of the Contemporary Arts Council of the Museum of Modern Art and enjoyed traveling to New York City and abroad to visit contemporary art destinations. For many years, Gene helped to organize the Oklahoma City Museum of Art’s Renaissance Ball, an annual fundraising event for the museum.

In 1998, Gene and Ed established an advised fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. Following Gene's death in May 2012, her family created the Gene Barth Memorial Fund for the Oklahoma City Museum of Art that will ensure her support of the arts will continue in perpetuity.

Since 1976, the Oklahoma City Museum of Art’s Annual Renaissance Ball has raised more than $5 million for museum operations and programs. In September 2012, the 37th annual fundraising event featured a balloon recreation of the Dale Chihuly Eleanor Blake Kirkpatrick Memorial Tower. Standing 20 feet tall, the tower was made of 1,500 balloons.

Bruce Johnson

Although he was a native of Indiana, Bruce Johnson made his mark in Oklahoma. Born in 1913, he spent the early part of his professional career practicing law in Indianapolis, specializing in federal tax law. In 1951, he moved his family to Oklahoma City where he joined the law firm Crowe & Dunlevy. He would practice law at the firm until his retirement in 1978.

Soon after Mr. Johnson’s arrival in Oklahoma City, a dispute arose in the community as to the proper functions of attorneys and CPAs. He took the opportunity to collaborate with a CPA to organize a group of top practitioners of both professions to cooperate in a joint study of tax law for the benefit of their clients. Several such groups continue to meet weekly more than 50 years later. A frequent lecturer on tax subjects at universities, Mr. Johnson was appointed in 1967 by Gov. Dewey Bartlett to a committee that advised on changes to the state income tax laws. He also donated his time and expertise through his participation in numerous tax-related and legal organizations including serving on committees of the tax section of the American Bar Association.

A member at different times of Quail Creek Golf and Country Club and the Oklahoma City Golf and Country Club, Mr. Johnson enjoyed playing golf with friends and recorded eight holes-in-one. He also volunteered his time to serve on the board of Integris Baptist Medical Center. He was married for 69 years to Frances who preceded him in death. Mr. Johnson died Dec. 13, 2011.
Herbert Langsam

Born in the Bronx, New York, Herbert “Herb” Langsam came to Oklahoma at the age of 17 to attend pharmacy school at the University of Oklahoma. Shortly after graduating, he married Dorothy Goodman Langsam and began working as a pharmacist.

In 1961, Herb started Langsam Pharmacy in Oklahoma City where he specialized in geriatric pharmacology. He was a pioneer in the pharmacy profession, leading the way for the practice of consultant pharmacy to ensure the appropriate use of medications for senior citizens. He also developed the first pharmacy computer system in the United States. In 1987, he established Langsam Health Service, a conglomerate of health care companies that provided a variety of services to residents of long-term care facilities.

Herb was one of the founding members of the American Society of Consultant Pharmacists, a nonprofit organization for pharmacists who provide drug therapy management services to older adults and individuals with chronic illness. His expertise in medication management and Medicare issues made him a respected speaker and consultant in the health care industry. Herb also served on the University of Oklahoma College of Pharmacy board of directors and he and Dorothy created an endowed chair in geriatric pharmacy at the college.

Herb and Dorothy were longtime members of the Emanuel Synagogue, one of the oldest Jewish congregations in Oklahoma. After Dorothy’s death in 2005, he established the Dorothy Goodman Langsam Memorial Fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to benefit the synagogue. Herb died in February 2012, but his pioneering spirit will long be remembered.
Bob Orbach

If you grew up in the Oklahoma City area prior to the late 1980s, there’s a good chance that you’re familiar with the name Orbach’s and you may have even shopped at the clothing store. Orbach’s was founded in 1919 when Sy Orbach, Bob’s father, leased space at the Rothschild’s Department Store in downtown Oklahoma City. Bob joined the business following his service in World War II. The family would eventually open stand-alone stores in Tulsa, Oklahoma City and Denver before closing the business in 1991.

There was so much more about Bob Orbach’s life than running the family business. Prior to leaving for Europe to fight in Gen. Patton’s 3rd Army, he married Harriette Goldfain, whom he had known since childhood. The couple had a deep and abiding love for the community and gave back in numerous ways. One of Bob’s greatest pleasures was handset letterpress printing and he owned an antique press. Together, the couple printed 250 copies of a cookbook featuring Harriette’s recipes with Bob handwriting each letter on his press. The proceeds of the book along with a match from John Kirkpatrick established an endowment fund for the benefit of the Oklahoma City Museum of Art. Today, one of the cookbooks is part of the collection of the Rare Books of the New York Public Library.

Bob also loved to garden and putter around his greenhouse and was a master at building reproductions of antique furniture that he shared with family and friends. Bob Orbach died Feb. 18, 2012; he was preceded in death by Harriette. Together, the couple left a lasting legacy on the community they both loved.
Robert and Carolyn Orner

Robert “Bob” Orner attributes his success in life to various friends, family and mentors. This support inspired him and his wife Carolyn Cook Orner to establish the Orner-Cook Scholarship at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation.

“I wanted to create this scholarship to help students pursue higher education because I appreciate what I have,” Bob says. “Without the help of others I would not be where I am today.”

Retired from the printing industry, Bob says his first experience in printing was as a boy working during his Christmas break at a printing company where his father worked. After serving in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War, Bob attended the University of Oklahoma and graduated with a bachelor’s degree in journalism. After college, Bob went to work for the Kerr-McGee Corporation helping with advertising and grand openings of the company’s retail gas stations. During his time at Kerr-McGee he had the opportunity to work on former Oklahoma governor and U.S. Sen. Robert S. Kerr’s senatorial campaign.

In 1966, Bob opened a printing company in Oklahoma City that he operated until 1979. He then began selling graphic arts machinery worldwide, and he and Carolyn enjoyed traveling throughout the United States and abroad on business trips.

Bob says he treasures the opportunities afforded to him throughout his life and it’s his desire to share these opportunities with others. The Orner-Cook Scholarship provides support for Oklahoma students pursuing higher education.
Eloise Rees

A talented and artistic woman, Eloise Rodkey Rees earned her master’s degree in drama from the University of Oklahoma. A wife and mother, she entertained her family with her talents in song and piano. It wasn’t until her two sons were leaving the home that she pursued what would be a successful writing career that would last until her death at age 94. Several of her novels were published and she was pursuing production of her screenplays and original songs.

Mrs. Rees lived nearly her entire life in Edmond, minus the first four years of their marriage when she followed her husband, Kenneth, from post to post before his deployment to Europe toward the end of World War II. Following the war, the couple and their three children settled in Edmond where Mr. Rees began a career as a petroleum engineer. Mrs. Rees was very engaged in community activities and supported projects at the Edmond Historical Society, the Edmond Fine Arts Institute. Her work with the Edmond Historical Society focused mainly on the restoration of her family’s property, the Rodkey Mill and the Rodkey homestead.

In 2008, Mrs. Rees established an endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation for the benefit of the Edmond Public Schools Foundation and the Eloise Rodkey Rees Writing Award. The annual award is an essay contest open to graduating seniors at all Edmond high schools. Students must write an inspiring essay on the topic The State of Our Nation. The essays are judged by a committee.

Mrs. Rees died Feb. 7, 2012 but her devotion to her hometown will be felt for generations.
Although she was originally from Iowa, Gladys Tucker loved Oklahoma City. After graduating from high school in La Porte City, Iowa, Gladys attended George Washington University in Washington, D.C. While in Washington, she met and married Morrison Tucker and in 1951, they moved their family to Oklahoma City.

The Tuckers immediately embraced Oklahoma City and became involved in various civic organizations. Passionate about music, Gladys sang in the choir at St. Paul’s Cathedral and enjoyed traveling to opera houses in New York, Santa Fe, Dallas and Tulsa. She served on the board of directors for the Oklahoma City Art League, Oklahoma City Ballet and Oklahoma City Philharmonic Society and was a founding member of the executive advisory board for the Oklahoma City University Wanda L. Bass School of Music.

Gladys and Morrison were longtime supporters of beautification efforts in Oklahoma City. Mr. Tucker helped to establish Oklahoma City Beautiful, a nonprofit organization that provides beautification, litter abatement and education programs. After his death in 1994, Gladys established the Morrison Graham Tucker Beautification Fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to support an annual leadership award at the organization. Thanks to the support of generous donors such as the Tuckers, Oklahoma City Beautiful will be able to share its message of environmental stewardship with future generations.

Gladys lived to be 100 years old and lived vibrantly every day of her life. She worked in the White House with First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt, in Venezuela with the Rockefeller family and in Oklahoma City with many friends who loved flowers and music as she did. She truly “bloomed where she was planted” and brought her gracious good spirit to everyone she met.

Phyllis Wheeler

If you were ever fortunate enough to meet Phyllis Pickrell Wheeler, then you knew what it was like to be in the presence of someone who truly loved life. With a genuine warmth and infectious laugh, she could make a stranger feel like family within minutes.

The valedictorian of the Tipton High School class of 1956, Phyllis was active in her school and community, while also earning titles such as Miss Tipton and Farm Bureau Queen. In 1957 she married Gene Wheeler and went on to earn a bachelor’s degree in education in 1960. Gene’s banking career took the family to several Oklahoma communities including Ponca City, Duncan and Oklahoma City as well as Tucson, Arizona. Wherever they lived, Phyllis immersed herself in the community and made her mark. While living in Duncan, she was very involved with civic and philanthropic organizations and in 1984 was named the community’s Woman of the Year by the Duncan Chamber of Commerce.

When the family relocated to Oklahoma City in 1985, Phyllis became an active member of Junior League of Oklahoma City, PEO and the Nichols Hills United Methodist Church where she was a faithful member of the choir. In her early 50s, she decided to embark on a career with the Oklahoma State Senate and held a number of positions before finally retiring in 2010.

Phyllis is survived by her husband, their three children, seven grandchildren and a countless number of friends. Following her death, the family established the Phyllis Wheeler Memorial Fund to honor a life well lived.
Living in Norman, Joan Johnson has witnessed firsthand the positive impact that the Center for Children and Families, Inc. (CCFI) has had in the community. The charitable organization provides services for families coping with abuse, divorce, teenage pregnancy and other adverse experiences, as well as free afterschool and summer enrichment programs. After joining CCFI’s board of directors in August 2011, Joan says she couldn’t pass up a matching grant opportunity offered by the Oklahoma City Community Foundation.

“CCFI serves families in Cleveland County with many healing services,” says Joan. “It’s a wonderful organization and when I heard that the Oklahoma City Community Foundation would match any gift to CCFI, I couldn’t think of a better place to send my donation.”

Originally from Duncan, Okla., Joan graduated from the University of Oklahoma. She is the director of global logistics procurement for Johnson Controls, an international manufacturer headquartered in Norman where she has worked for more than 25 years.

With the help of her gift and gifts from other donors, CCFI increased their endowment fund by nearly $7,000 through the 2011 Endowment Match Challenge, a dollar-for-dollar matching opportunity for charitable organization endowments.
Leo and Kay Morrison appreciate the value of Catholic education. In 1952, Leo was in the second graduating class of Bishop McGuinness Catholic High School and Kay is a graduate of Monte Cassino School, a Catholic high school in Tulsa. The couple treasures their academic experience and they want to make the unique opportunity available for others. Through grants from their Advised Fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to schools like Mount St. Mary Catholic High School in Oklahoma City, they are doing just that.

A Korean War veteran, Leo joined his father’s finance business in 1958, where he worked until 1996. He and Kay are longtime members of Christ the King Roman Catholic Church in Oklahoma City. Leo says the Oklahoma City Community Foundation offers everyone an opportunity to make a difference in their community. He used to think charitable giving was a practice for only the wealthy, but after witnessing the diversity of donors at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation and realizing the collective impact these gifts have in the community, he and Kay decided to establish an Advised Fund in 2004. Since that time, the couple has consistently recommended grants to organizations that are important to them, such as Mount St. Mary Catholic High School.

“Mount St. Mary’s is an educational treasure in south Oklahoma City,” Leo says. “Located in one of the oldest sections of the city, Mount St. Mary’s has the unique opportunity to provide academic excellence to families living in the area.”

Originally established in 1884 as Sacred Heart Mission, Mount St. Mary was founded by the Sisters of Mercy as a boarding school for girls in Indian Territory near Shawnee. After fire destroyed the school, the Sisters relocated to Oklahoma City and Mount St. Mary Academy was built in 1903. Located just south of the Oklahoma River in one of Oklahoma City’s oldest neighborhoods, the historic school is a community landmark. In 1950, the school began admitting boys and became known as Mount St. Mary Catholic High School. The school grew to become a pioneer in education and was the first Oklahoma City school to implement a fully-integrated computer network as well as block scheduling, to better prepare students for college.

Today, Mount St. Mary prides itself in providing a rigorous college preparatory education in a Catholic Christian environment. The school believes that service should be a way of life for its students and offers a community service learning program through which students volunteer for area charitable organizations. Principal Talita DeNegri says that by participating in these programs, students learn about their own capacity to make a difference as they connect with needs of the community.

This type of leadership and appreciation of service is what the Morrisons hope to share with others through their generous support. Grants from their Advised Fund will help the school purchase new technology equipment, as well as provide tuition assistance for students who might not otherwise be able to attend the school.

“Through the generosity of Mr. & Mrs. Morrison, Mount St. Mary is able to provide state-of-the-art technology to our students and teachers as well as increase our capability to offer a Catholic education through our tuition assistance program,” principal DeNegri says. “We are truly grateful for the Morrisons’ continued support as we strive each day to foster an environment of Mercy for our community.”

Advised Funds

An Advised Fund can be established at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation with cash or other assets such as appreciated stock, real estate, retirement plan assets, insurance policies or through a designation in a planned gift like a charitable trust or charitable gift annuity. We offer three Advised Fund options that offer the ability for you to recommend grants at any time. We also offer anonymous grant-making if that is your preference. Our staff is available to provide its expertise and meet with you and your professional advisor to discuss further.

Legacy Fund

The Legacy Fund has a required minimum balance of $10,000 and offers low, competitive fees and we handle all required reporting and administrative details. A Legacy Fund is a permanent endowment that provides an annual spendable amount. Legacy Funds offer a favorable tax treatment when compared to private foundations. Our secure online reporting system allows a donor to have access to fund and grant reports and even make grant recommendations.

Gift Fund

Established with a minimum $10,000 initial gift, our Gift Fund is a more effective alternative to a commercial gift fund. With a Gift Fund, the balance is completely spendable. Donors with Gift Funds also have access to fund and grant reports through our secure online system and can also make grant recommendations online. Gift Funds also benefit from our low, competitive fees.

Express Fund

An Express Fund is the perfect option for individuals who want to make year-end gifts of cash, appreciated stock or other non-cash assets. An Express Fund can be established with a minimum gift of $1,000 and is completely spendable. You can make the gift at the end of the year, providing a tax benefit, then recommend grants from the fund at a later point. We provide fund balance reports for Express Fund donors.

The Oklahoma-based organizations listed on pages 34-37 received at least one grant from an Advised Fund administered by the Oklahoma City Community Foundation during Fiscal Year 2012 for a total of $7.4 million in grants.

The Nature Conservancy of Oklahoma

Each summer, The Nature Conservancy of Oklahoma staff and volunteers conduct surveys for butterflies and moths at preserves including the Pontotoc Ridge Preserve, a 2,900-acre landscape located in south central Oklahoma.

The preserve features bottomland forests, oak savannas (essential for migratory birds), mixed-grass and tallgrass prairies, springs and cool running streams. The surveys identify what species were found compared to what species were expected to be found and the relative abundance of those species present. The surveys provide key information for the Conservancy’s biologists on the success or lack thereof of efforts to restore, maintain and enhance the various habitats located on the preserve. Biological surveys are also conducted for birds, reptiles and amphibians, mammals, fish, other insects and plants but not on an annual basis.

Pontotoc Ridge Preserve is one of 11 preserves the Conservancy owns or protects in Oklahoma, a total of more than 90,000 acres. The Nature Conservancy uses a science-based planning process to identify landscapes that if preserved, will conserve biodiversity over the long term. The organization has worked in Oklahoma since 1986.

The Nature Conservancy of Oklahoma established a Charitable Organization Endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation in 1993. The organization received several grants from Advised Funds during Fiscal Year 2012.

Special Olympics Oklahoma

For three days during May of 2012, thousands of coaches, volunteers, family members and friends cheered for 4,500 Special Olympics athletes taking part in the 43rd annual Summer Games held on the campus of Oklahoma State University. Competitions were held in bocce, bowling, golf, powerlifting, horseshoes, track and field, basketball and softball. Oklahoma’s Summer Games is the largest Summer Games program in North America and is the state’s largest amateur sporting event. The event begins with a parade of athletes, who stay at the Olympic Village on campus, and features an Olympic torch run to kick off the festivities.

Every year, more than 9,500 Oklahoma athletes participate in Special Olympics Oklahoma. Competition is offered in 16 official sports, including unified sports (partnering athletes with and without special needs). Overall, there are more than 120 competitions and events conducted in Oklahoma each year. Each January, the Winter Games are held on the University of Oklahoma campus and attract more than 2,000 athletes.

In addition to the competitions, Special Olympics Oklahoma’s Healthy Athletes initiative works to educate and train health care professionals about the special needs of people with intellectual disabilities and how to communicate with them. The program raises awareness and improves access to health care for the Special Olympics athletes through event-based health screening clinics.

During Fiscal Year 2012, several Advised Fund grants were recommended for the benefit of Special Olympics Oklahoma.

For Clyde Riggs, volunteering his time and expertise with Rebuilding Together OKC was a natural fit. An Oklahoma City builder and developer, Clyde enjoyed helping the organization make home repairs and accessibility modifications for low-income senior homeowners.

“Clyde’s favorite saying was ‘life is good’ and he made life good for so many of us and our clients,” says Valerie Aubert, executive director of Rebuilding Together OKC.

Established in 1992, Rebuilding Together OKC works to improve the living conditions of low-income, elderly homeowners in Oklahoma City by making repairs and modifications to their homes. The goal of the organization is to ensure these seniors can continue living in their own homes by providing a safe, warm and dry living environment. Common repairs include replacing doors and windows, repairing leaky roofs, fixing minor plumbing and electrical problems and installing ramps, handrails and other accessibility modifications. Rebuilding Together OKC utilizes volunteer labor and donated materials and provides these services at no cost to the homeowner.

In addition to volunteering his handiwork, Clyde helped to spearhead fundraising events for Rebuilding Together OKC. Valerie says he was instrumental in starting their annual Construction Derby, a “soap box derby” in which teams race vehicles they have constructed of materials and components commonly used to make home modifications and repairs. Now in its ninth year, the derby has become a major fundraising event for the nonprofit organization.

An Oklahoma City native and graduate of Classen High School, Clyde started Clyde Riggs Construction at the age of 25. Through hard work and determination, he grew the company into the successful contracting business it is today with projects across the country. Outside of his work, Clyde enjoyed a wide range of recreational activities and was known to be an adventurer. In 1979, he participated in the cross-country car race known as Cannonball Run and his team finished in seventh place. But Clyde’s greatest love was bicycling and he enjoyed taking cycling trips through Europe and the United States with friends.

In 2010, Clyde died at the age of 75 in a bicycling accident. Following his death, his family established the Clyde Riggs Memorial Fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to benefit charitable organizations that Clyde cared about such as Rebuilding Together OKC.

“As a contractor and developer, our father saw Rebuilding Together OKC as one way he was able to give back to the city,” says son Derek Riggs. “Our hope is for the Clyde Riggs Memorial Fund to reflect his involvement and love of Oklahoma City and preserve his memory.”

Derek Riggs

Charitable Organization Endowments

Through the Charitable Organization Endowment Program, we administer permanent funds for 310 nonprofit organizations. The program is the largest of its kind in the United States. As of June 30, 2012, the fund market value for these endowment funds was $153.6 million and annual distributions to the organizations exceeded $5.6 million. More than 40 nonprofit organizations participated in a match opportunity during the first part of Fiscal Year 2012 and increased their fund balances by a collective $607,000. Those organizations are denoted with *. The endowment funds marked with a ▲ are organizations who have completed a profile on GiveSmartOKC.org as of 10/15/2012.

Jazz in June

In 2012, Jazz in June recorded its largest crowd ever at a festival concert when more than 15,000 people enjoyed the performance of David Sanborn, a multiple Grammy-winning jazz saxophonist (shown in photograph above). Overall, more than 150,000 people attended the three-day event held each year in Norman.

Over the past 30 years, Jazz in June has grown from a single concert to three days of nightly concerts by national and regional jazz and blues artists, post-concert jam sessions, educational workshops and a public radio program featuring recordings of all of the festival concerts. While the mission of the organization is to present the free annual festival, the organization also works to educate the public about jazz music through free workshops during the festival and its Public Radio Project, a collaboration with KGOU, a public radio station based in Norman. The project involves recording all of the festival’s concerts, producing these into a radio program and distributing the program, free of charge, to any public radio station in the country or abroad. KGOU and other Oklahoma public radio stations air the program on July 4th, Labor Day and in the weeks leading up to the festival.

Jazz in June established its Charitable Organization Endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation in 2007. The organization has worked to increase its endowment fund balance by participating in the 2011 Endowment Match Challenge and through the Kirkpatrick Family Fund’s Matching Endowment Program.

The Opry Heritage Foundation of Oklahoma

The Opry Heritage Foundation of Oklahoma was created in 2004 to help support the Centennial Rodeo Opry and to promote the state’s musical heritage through various arts education programs. Originally established in 1977, the Centennial Rodeo Opry is a weekly, live performance that showcases aspiring country and gospel musicians. Throughout the past 35 years, more than 20,000 artists have performed at the Opry including famous Oklahomans Reba McEntire, Wanda Jackson and Vince Gill.

Located in Oklahoma City’s historic Stockyards District, the family-friendly venue features live performances every Saturday that are also broadcast on Oklahoma City television channel KSBI 52.

Through its artist development workshops, the Opry Heritage Foundation helps performers of all ages develop stage presence and vocal technique. The group also presents the Oklahoma Heritage Concert Series, an interactive program that teaches Oklahoma history to students through a live, musical performance. In 2009, the nonprofit organization opened the Granville Community Music School to provide affordable, quality music instruction to students from low-income families.

In 2012, the Opry Heritage Foundation established a charitable organization endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to help provide long-term support for its programs.

“Establishing this endowment will help us grow our organization and expand our arts education programs to make a difference in the lives of even more children,” says executive director Cindy Scarberry.

Thanks to the advocacy of a CASA volunteer, these four siblings were united under one roof with their grandparents and their grandmother became the children’s adoptive parent. In 2011, 230 CASA volunteers represented 765 children in Oklahoma County Juvenile Court.

CASA of Oklahoma County

Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) of Oklahoma County provide trained, court-appointed volunteers who advocate for the best interests of abused and neglected children in the juvenile court system. Established in 1987, the nonprofit organization is the only CASA program in Oklahoma County, which is the largest jurisdiction in the state.

CASA of Oklahoma County annually recruits, trains and supervises more than 200 volunteers that represent more than 800 children. CASA volunteers must complete 40 hours of training before being sworn in by the presiding judge of the Juvenile Court. They are then assigned to an abuse or neglect case to observe and evaluate the circumstances and make an independent recommendation to the court to help determine the safest, most stable living environment available to the child. CASA volunteers assist the judicial process by serving as voices and witnesses for abused and neglected children, helping to ensure that their best interests are upheld.

In 2008, CASA of Oklahoma County established a charitable organization endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to help support its volunteer training programs.

University of Oklahoma – Naval ROTC

Since its founding in 1940, the University of Oklahoma (OU) NROTC program has educated and trained qualified students for service as commissioned officers in the Navy’s unrestricted line, the Navy Nurse Corps and the Marine Corps. The program works to develop the students mentally, morally and physically and inspire them with the highest ideals of duty and loyalty. The students can participate in program activities such as the color guard, drill team, rifle and pistol team and the sail team to name a few. Currently, the OU NROTC on average commissions 15-20 officers each year.

In 1988, John E. Kirkpatrick established the Charitable Organization Endowment fund for the benefit of the OU NROTC. Mr. Kirkpatrick, founder of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, was a 1931 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and he remained the seventh oldest Academy graduate until his death in 2006. A Naval officer until 1935, he was called back into active duty in 1941 and served on ships including the USS North Carolina and the USS Oklahoma City, holding the rank of Commander at the war’s conclusion. He continued his service in the U.S. Navy Reserve, retiring as a Rear Admiral in 1956.

Deer Creek Schools

The Deer Creek Schools Foundation was established in 1980 to support academic projects and scholarships for teachers and students in Deer Creek Public Schools. In 1995, the foundation transferred the administration of its endowment to the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, establishing the first Affiliated Fund for the benefit of a public school foundation. In addition to funding scholarships for Deer Creek High School seniors, the foundation awards grants to teachers of the year, teachers who obtain national certification and to fund special academic projects throughout the district. Recent projects funded by the foundation include new desk atlases and world maps, chemistry lab equipment, library books, SMART boards and iPads to provide mobile computer labs throughout the district. Deer Creek Schools Foundation president Brian Harvey says the foundation awards approximately $70,000 each year in grants for teachers and has provided more than $1 million in grants since 2000.
During Fiscal Year 2012, the iFund Grants Program continued to make an immediate impact in the community. Launched in 2011, the program allows the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to effectively use current gifts from donors combined with funding through several Field of Interest Funds established to benefit a charitable organization that no longer exists or created to support a specific charitable interest area.

The iFund Grants are offered in the following three areas:

Access to Health Care grants are awarded to nonprofit organizations who are providing basic and preventive health care including mental and dental care to individuals without access to such care.

Opportunities for Children grants support programs that provide access to mainstream opportunities in spite of physical, mental or economic circumstances for children from birth to age 14.

Services for Elderly grants support programs that help to keep senior citizens safe and living independently in their own homes.

What organizations are eligible for an iFund grant?

Any 501(c)(3) charitable organization providing direct services in central Oklahoma may apply for an iFund grant. Each grant area has an annual application period. More information is available including instructions on applying at www.ifundokc.org.

Making a Difference With an iFund Gift: Hearts for Hearing

Donors who are interested in supporting iFunds may make a gift in any amount to any or all of the iFund grant areas. We guarantee that 100 percent of any gift to an iFund will go directly toward the grants. Through our secure online giving service, Brian McKnight has set up a recurring credit card gift to support the Opportunities for Children iFund.

“With the iFunds, you’re able to pool your resources together with other donors to provide grants to an array of charities, not just one,” Brian says. “I hope that my iFund gifts can change the way a child looks at life.”

An Access to Health Care iFund grant was awarded in Fiscal Year 2012 to Hearts for Hearing Foundation for an expansion of its Sound Beginnings Program. Each year in Oklahoma, an estimated 150 babies are born with deafness or hearing loss. The Sound Beginnings program is targeted to help fit hearing aids as soon as possible after a child is diagnosed.

The organization expanded the program with the addition of iHear, a new Internet-based tele-therapy initiative developed by St. Joseph’s Institute for the Deaf, a St. Louis-based nonprofit. iHear is an innovative video conferencing software that brings one-on-one therapy sessions directly to patients who cannot receive onsite therapy. iHear takes away the barriers of work schedules, childcare and transportation restrictions.

Because Medicaid does not yet cover tele-therapy costs, the iFund grant will allow Hearts for Hearing to provide the iHear services to 10 families living in central Oklahoma who receive Medicaid benefits.

An Access to Health Care iFund Grant Helps Provide Free Diabetes Care for Uninsured Patients

More than 15 percent of Oklahomans are living with diabetes, according to the Oklahoma Diabetes Prevention and Control Program. The cost of treating and managing this disease can be a heavy financial burden, especially for individuals without access to quality health care. Thanks to grants from the Oklahoma City Community Foundation’s Access to Health Care iFund program, several free, nonprofit clinics in central Oklahoma are providing free and low-cost services for low-income and uninsured diabetics.

Good Shepherd Ministries, a nonprofit organization that provides health care services, food, clothing and other necessities to individuals in need, received an Access to Health Care iFund grant in Fiscal Year 2012 for its diabetes program. Through its free medical clinic that is located near downtown Oklahoma City, the group provides diabetes assessments, medication, supplies and educational opportunities for uninsured patients.

“A before receiving the iFund grant we couldn’t afford to provide insulin to our patients,” says Cathy Manuel, executive director of Good Shepherd Ministries. “It has also really helped us to reeducate our staff and volunteers, as well as our patients on diabetes care and maintenance through healthy lifestyle changes.”

Thanks to the Opportunities for Health Care iFund grant, more than 100 uninsured diabetic patients will receive free diabetes care through Good Shepherd Ministries. In addition, classes, assessments and patient counseling will be offered at no cost to help the patients learn more about the disease and how they can effectively manage their condition.
From 1919 until it closed in 1985, Classen High School played a major role in the lives of more than 20,000 students who graduated. The memories of a good education, camaraderie and lifelong friendships are kept alive by the Classen High School Alumni Association. Founded when the school was closed due to declining enrollment, association members have worked tirelessly to keep their strong memories alive through reunions and publications.

When the school reopened in 1994 as a public magnet school and renamed Classen School of Advanced Studies, the association took the opportunity to connect the alumni with current students and faculty. Several rooms at the school are dedicated to a Classen museum that includes a collection of school memorabilia.

Current association president Norma Bowden Harris (Class of 1951) describes Classen High School as a “great school that provided a good learning opportunity with friendly teachers who were helpful.” She recalls that girls were able to play tennis and enjoyed attending football games with her friends as a member of the Classettes Pep Club.

“One of the most important purposes of our association is to recognize and encourage excellence in scholarship,” Mrs. Harris said. “Today more than ever, scholarships are needed to help students further their education. Not only does the scholarship help a student today, but for years to come.”

The association decided to expand its support of the school to include an annual scholarship to a graduating senior. Don and Carolyn Zachritz (both graduates of the Class of 1955) had established an Advised Fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation in 1992 and were very familiar with the scholarship endowment program we administer. The couple helped to encourage the establishment of the Classen High School Alumni Association Scholarship endowment fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation.

“Don did a great job in helping to get this endowment set up,” Mrs. Harris said.

The endowment fund was established in early 2012 and was able to make its first award in May to Aubrey Brown. While this first award was a milestone for the alumni association in establishing a lasting legacy with the school loved by so many, for Aubrey it meant being able to attend the University of Central Oklahoma.

“I come from a single-parent home and my mother is a schoolteacher so this scholarship is greatly appreciated and needed,” Aubrey says. “Education is very important to my family and this scholarship will allow me the opportunity to attend college.”

“One of the most important purposes of our association is to recognize and encourage excellence in scholarship. Today more than ever, scholarships are needed to help students further their education. Not only does the scholarship help a student today, but for years to come.”

Established FY2012
Carolyn Watson Opportunities Scholarship

Carolyn Watson is a woman of action. As the longtime chair and CEO of Shamrock Bancshares in southern Oklahoma, she wanted to improve the quality of life for the residents living in the rural Oklahoma communities where her banks are located. In 1995, she established an endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to do just that. Since its inception, more than $650,000 in grants made through her Rural Oklahoma Community Foundation fund have provided for improvements to firefighting equipment, teaching enhancements for classrooms and public libraries and scholarships for teachers seeking continuing education.

While these grants have certainly benefited the communities, Carolyn sought to help individual students graduating from Oklahoma’s rural high schools. In 2010, she established the Carolyn Watson Opportunities Scholarship that offers an award of up to $10,000 per academic year to five eligible graduating high school seniors who want to attend college but may not be able to afford it. The award is applied toward tuition, fees, books and on-campus living. To qualify, students must attend high schools in one of 62 rural Oklahoma counties, have financial need and have demonstrated academic ability based upon a minimum grade point average of 3.25. Recipients can renew the scholarship each year for up to four academic years as long as they maintain a 3.0 grade point average. Students must be nominated by a teacher or community leader and demonstrate exceptional accomplishments outside of the normal classroom environment.

Through May 2012, the Carolyn Watson Opportunities Scholarship has been awarded to 15 students. Of those, eight have renewed the award for the second or third year of college.

Kyrstan Glasco was one of the first recipients of the award and has renewed her scholarship for both her sophomore and junior years. The Coalgate High School graduate attends Southeastern Oklahoma State University and will graduate with an accounting degree in 2014. She says receiving the scholarship has removed the financial burden of paying for college from her family.

“The award has been a tremendous help for me,” she adds. “Receiving this award three years in a row has shown me that hard work pays off and it gives me the incentive to do well in college.”
John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick established the Kirkpatrick Family Fund in 1989. The couple took a very personal approach to their philanthropy and their funding decisions were guided by extensive knowledge of the nonprofits they chose to support. Their interests in the community were diverse and they admired organizations with strong leadership, sound financial management and the ability to take risk with well thought out ideas. These principles provided the guide for their charitable giving and they passed these values on to their grandson, Christian K. Keesee, president of the Kirkpatrick Family Fund. At his request, in 2012 the fund’s trustees adopted a mission statement (right) to more clearly reflect his grandparents’ charitable spirit and intent for future generations.

The values that form this mission statement remain intact and continue to guide the funding decisions of the trustees.

The areas of interest for the Kirkpatrick family remain diverse and the organizations receiving support continue to demonstrate leadership that contributes significantly to the quality of life in central Oklahoma. In Fiscal Year 2012 the Kirkpatrick Family Fund approved more than $4 million in grants benefiting 164 organizations. The list that follows on pages 55-56 is a sample of grants approved for programs, general operations and charitable organization endowment funds at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation.

City Arts Center

In 1989, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund made its first grant to establish City Arts Center in the former Oklahoma Science and Arts Foundation building at State Fair Park. Since then, the fund has continued to support the organization’s arts education and exhibits programs. In 2012, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund and City Arts Center acquired 4.5 acres of land in downtown Oklahoma City that will become the new location for the organization. The location will be at Northwest 12th Street and North Broadway Drive. The new City Arts Center will be an integrated arts center that features the work of contemporary artists and promotes learning through a cycle of creating, inquiring, appreciating and celebrating.

“Soaring Voices: Recent Ceramics by Women from Japan” was the second contemporary arts exhibition for City Arts Center in 2012. The exhibition’s opening reception properly reflected Japanese culture and traditions including a performance by Mari Leslie, a respected traditional dancer.

The mission of the Kirkpatrick Family Fund is to invest in ideas and leadership that contribute to and advance the cultural, intellectual and social interests of the communities we support.
Special Care

Founded in 1985, Special Care provides direct childcare, education programs and on-site physical, occupational and speech therapy to children with and without special needs. The facility, located in northwest Oklahoma City, can serve up to 135 children ages six weeks to 21 years. Two-thirds of the children served have special needs and receive on-site specialized therapy while the other one-third follows typical development patterns. Through the organization’s education curriculum, children develop literacy skills in reading, writing, mathematics, art, music and cultural aspects of society. Special Care is the only childcare facility in the state of Oklahoma that offers such an integrated and inclusive environment and provides both populations with experiences they otherwise would not have.

In Fiscal Year 2012, Special Care received a general operating grant from the Kirkpatrick Family Fund.

Learn more about Special Care through its profile at GiveSmartOKC.org.
Matching Endowment Grants

Through its Matching Endowment Grant program, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund provides a $1 match for every $3 an organization receives to benefit its endowment fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. Organizations must apply to participate in the match program and they must raise their intended goal amount within a year. Below are the Matching Endowment Grants approved during Fiscal Year 2012. The dollar amount listed is the Kirkpatrick Family Fund’s match amount.

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation’s Community Programs are designed to address specific opportunities and issues within central Oklahoma. Through our Community Programs, we provide leadership and support as well as work together with various partnering organizations to help effectively address issues concerning the Oklahoma City metropolitan area.

During Fiscal Year 2012, our Community Programs included four focus areas: Charitable Organization Endowment Program, Literacy Is For Everyone (LIFE) Initiative, Parks & Public Spaces/Margaret Annis Boys Trust and the Trustee Scholarship Initiative. Each focus area works with a committee of Trustees and community volunteers to create a real impact within the community. A list of Community Program committees for Fiscal Year 2012 can be found on page 63 and a list of grants awarded through our various Community Programs is available on page 62.

FUND FOR OKLAHOMA CITY

The Fund for Oklahoma City is a compilation of unrestricted funds supported by donors who are interested in providing for the future our community. These funds provide the primary support for our Community Program activities. For nearly 40 years, the Fund for Oklahoma City has provided an opportunity for donors to help the Oklahoma City Community Foundation address issues in the community as they arise.
Charitable Organization Endowment Program

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation is the community’s leading advocate for endowment development and has more than 40 years of experience in effective endowment administration. In addition to our administrative oversight of the endowments, we also provide services and resources that add value to the more than the 300 organizations participating in the Charitable Organization Endowment Program. Our goal in offering these services is to provide the charities with the opportunity to strengthen their organizations. Below are highlights from our Charitable Organization Endowment Program during Fiscal Year 2012.

Central Oklahoma Charities

Since 1999, we have provided the area’s most up-to-date searchable online nonprofit directory through Central Oklahoma Charities. At www.occf.org/CentralOklahomaCharities you can find a list of the more than 300 charitable organizations participating in our endowment program. Each listing includes contact information for the organization, a description of services, a link to the organization’s website and email and a link to our online giving service. For those organizations with a published profile on GiveSmartOKC.org, the Central Oklahoma Charities page provides the contact information and links described above and becomes an online giving form for credit card gifts to that organization’s endowment fund.

Program Services and Resources

In addition to GiveSmartOKC (see page 11), we provide the following services to help charitable organization staff encourage support for their endowments.

E News is a monthly electronic newsletter that is distributed to all participants of the Charitable Organization Endowment Program. Each issue provides a digest of timely information, links to resources and a schedule of upcoming grant deadlines and training opportunities.

Legacy Giving is a dedicated section of our website at www.occflegacy.org that features planned giving resources for both donors and professional advisors. We encourage nonprofit organizations to utilize these resources and we also work directly with organizations’ staff and boards to discuss planned giving options with their donors.

Lunch for 2 is a free workshop we provide quarterly in conjunction with Cole & Reed PC that provides two hours of continuing education credit for certified public accountants who work for or with nonprofit organizations.

The Toolkit for charitable organizations offers several online resources at www.occf.org/COEtoolkit including instructions for nonprofits to add a link to their website directly to our online giving service, an archive of past E News issues and staff contact information.

2011 Endowment Match Challenge

During 2011, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation offered a dollar-for-dollar match opportunity to 69 organizations whose Charitable Organization Endowment fund balances were less than $40,000. Each gift made to those endowment funds through Dec. 31 were matched dollar for dollar. Match levels ranged from $5,000 for those endowments with higher fund balances up to $10,000 for organizations with endowment fund balances of $20,000 or less. At the conclusion of the match, 329 individual gifts from donors helped to increase the endowment funds of 43 nonprofit organizations by $582,033.

Beta Eta Lambda is the Oklahoma City alumni chapter of the national fraternity Alpha Phi Alpha that is dedicated to developing leaders and promoting academic excellence among its members. In 2007, the Beta Eta Lambda Scholarship Foundation of Alphi Phi Alpha established a charitable organization endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to support its scholarship and leadership development programs. By participating in the 2011 Endowment Match Challenge, the nonprofit organization increased its endowment fund by $20,000. “This is a significant step in the history of our foundation,” says president George Smith.
Friends of Northwest 10th Street

Established in 2007, Friends of Northwest 10th Street is a nonprofit organization that comprises business owners, residents and other community organizations interested in improving the quality of life for individuals living and working along the Northwest 10th Street corridor in Oklahoma City. The group has organized task forces to focus on three main issues: 1) beautification, 2) safety and security and 3) family, education and employment success. Among its programs are litter blitz campaigns, police officer appreciation events, free immunizations and school supplies for children living in the area.

In Fiscal Year 2012, Friends of Northwest 10th Street received a LIFE Initiative grant to help support instruction in its school-based adult literacy program that provides basic literacy, GED and English as a second language training to parents living in the area. Instructors are from the Oklahoma City Community College. Classes are currently being offered at Apollo Elementary in the Putnam City School District and Council Grove Elementary in the Western Heights District. Free childcare is also available to class participants.

Friends of Northwest 10th Street board member Heather Kay says that through the program, the group hopes to help area parents play an active role in their children’s education, as well as strengthen their capacity for post-secondary education and employment.

Get Reading Oklahoma

Since 2009, Get Reading Oklahoma has provided free access to educational programs designed to help adults improve their reading, writing and math skills and prepare for the GED exam. The free programs, TV411 and GED Connection, air on Oklahoma Educational Television Authority (OETA), as well as through Cox’s FreeZone section of On DEMAND, channel 1, Cox Channel 18 in Oklahoma City, Cox Channel 21 in Tulsa and as streaming videos at www.GetReadingOklahoma.org.

In addition, DVDs of the two series have been distributed to more than 100 literacy providers and public libraries statewide through the Oklahoma Department of Libraries and Central Oklahoma Workforce Investment Board. Individuals seeking literacy services or who want to volunteer can call the toll-free telephone number 1-888-OK2Read (1-888-652-7323) to connect with literacy programs in their community.

Established in 1991, the Margaret Annis Boys Trust together with the Parks & Public Spaces Initiative provide support for beautification projects in parks, medians, schools, neighborhoods and other public lands throughout the Oklahoma City metropolitan area. Since its inception, the Margaret Annis Boys Trust has provided more than $2 million in beautification grants for more than 250 public parks and medians in Oklahoma County. During Fiscal Year 2012, activity was focused on collaborating with city officials and the public in developing policies and plans to support community beautification efforts.

Community Beautification Water Program
The Oklahoma City Community Foundation worked with city officials to develop the Community Beautification Water Program that will assist local neighborhood associations who care for and maintain public medians and parks with the cost of water. Approved by the Oklahoma City Council in April, the program will enable qualifying neighborhoods to receive $1,000 in annual water credit as well as water meters, backflow preventers and frost-free hydrants at no cost. To qualify, neighborhoods must be registered with the Neighborhood Alliance of Central Oklahoma. More information is available at www.okc.gov/parks/adopt.

Comprehensive Plan for Oklahoma City Parks System
In Fiscal Year 2012, the Parks & Public Spaces Initiative helped provide funding for a comprehensive parks plan for the City of Oklahoma City to be developed as a result of the parks study commissioned by the Initiative in 2010. National consulting firm Wallace Roberts and Todd were selected to develop the plan and firm representatives visited Oklahoma City in June. The goal of the parks plan is to work with city officials, Oklahoma City Council and the Parks and Recreation Department to develop a long-term, sustainable plan for the funding and maintenance of the city’s parks.

For a list of all grants awarded in Fiscal Year 2012, please see page 62. For more information on our beautification programs and grants, please contact Brian Dougherty at 405/606-2908 or b.dougherty@occf.org.

Margaret Annis Boys Arboretum at Will Rogers Gardens
Will Rogers Gardens has been called one of Oklahoma City’s most beautiful kept secrets. One of Oklahoma City’s oldest park properties, the 30-acre garden is located on the southwest corner of Northwest 36th Street at Grand Boulevard and is home to the 10-acre Margaret Annis Boys Arboretum. Named after Oklahoma City schoolteacher Margaret Annis Boys in honor of the significant impact her fund has had on public parks in the community, the arboretum showcases a collection of native and ornamental trees and shrubs, many of which were first planted in the 1930s.

A signature grant from the Margaret Annis Boys Trust helped to fund improvements to the arboretum, which were completed in 2012. New features include a more prominent entrance as well as paved walking trails and 10-foot-wide pathways that make the arboretum more accessible. In addition, a permanent endowment at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation provides for the arboretum’s long-term maintenance.
TRUSTEE SCHOLARSHIP INITIATIVE

Established in 1998, the Trustee Scholarship Initiative is designed to encourage more students in central Oklahoma to further their education beyond high school. In addition to scholarships, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation Trustees also established the Central Oklahoma Guidance Counselor Network to help accomplish this goal. To date, the Initiative has awarded $4.37 million in scholarship funds to more than 3,947 students in central Oklahoma.

Scholarship Programs

Community Foundation Scholars – This program rewards good students who are also good citizens. Recipients are students who might not otherwise qualify for awards based solely on academic standards. In 2012, 90 scholarships of $1,500 each were awarded.

New Opportunities Scholars – Established in 2000 as the Foundation of Promise Scholars, the New Opportunities Scholars program awards scholarships for students who will be the first generation in their family to attend college. Recipients apply during their junior year of high school and complete a series of college preparatory activities, including summer employment. In 2012, 55 students each received a $1,500 award.

Oklahoma Youth With Promise Scholars – The Oklahoma City Community Foundation works with both public and private agencies to award scholarships to students who graduate from high school while in Oklahoma’s foster care system and wish to pursue post-secondary education. Most recently, 47 students were awarded scholarships through this program.

Non-Traditional Scholars – This program helps adults re-entering the educational system by working through several agencies to identify adults who have completed one educational program and possess the ability and desire to advance to another program. Sponsoring organizations identify the students and provide mentoring support to recipients.

Nurse Education Program – Established in 2003 to address qualified staffing challenges facing the metropolitan area’s nonprofit hospitals, the Nurse Education Program offers scholarships to nurses employed at any of the participating hospitals who are seeking an associate or bachelor’s degree in nursing. For the 2011-12 academic year, 39 nurses are receiving scholarships through this program.

In 2012, the Trustee Scholarship Initiative also began awarding scholarships to nurses currently employed at Oklahoma elementary and secondary schools who are seeking a bachelor’s degree in nursing. Currently, school nurses with an associate degree plus a registered nurse license may be employed with an Oklahoma public school under a provisional certification with the requirement to complete a bachelor’s degree in nursing within 10 years.

CENTRAL OKLAHOMA GUIDANCE COUNSELOR NETWORK

The Central Oklahoma Guidance Counselor Network provides training and support for high school guidance counselors at 51 public and private high schools in central Oklahoma. For many counselors, the information offered through two annual education workshops provides the only opportunity to learn about current college admissions and financial aid issues. In addition, each year we provide at least one Community Foundation Scholars award to each high school with a participating guidance counselor.

Scholars Luncheons

In 2012, we honored a total of 145 students from 51 high schools in central Oklahoma over the course of two days at our Trustee Scholarship Initiative Scholars Luncheons. These events were held at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation and provided an opportunity to recognize the recipients of our Community Foundation Scholars and New Opportunities Scholars awards along with their guidance counselors.
Summer institute provides training to area high school guidance counselors

A Fund for Oklahoma City grant provided support for a two-day workshop for our Central Oklahoma Guidance Counselor Network’s summer institute. Held on the campus of Oklahoma City University, 23 high school guidance counselors and six area college admissions staff learned more about the college admissions process. During the free workshop, faculty presenters from colleges and universities in Oklahoma and Texas provided training, tools and tips to help the counselors guide their prospective college students through the college admissions process and financial aid applications. The Central Oklahoma Guidance Counselor Network is a free training and support program offered through our Trustee Scholarship Initiative. Read more about the initiative on page 61.

Bill Swisher

Bill Swisher was a natural born inventor who had more than 50 patents registered in his name. His innovations included a technology that changed the method by which to pave roads. Mr. Swisher founded CMI Corporation, an Oklahoma City-based company that would become a global leader in manufacturing road paving equipment. A third-generation Oklahoman, Mr. Swisher was very active with several civic organizations including the Boy Scouts of America – Last Frontier Council, the Oklahoma City Chamber and Allied Arts Foundation and he served as a Trustee of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation from 1981-83. While he was a successful businessman and respected civic leader, his greatest joy came from spending time with his wife of 57 years, Wanda, their children and grandchildren. Mr. Swisher died May 31, 2012.
The Oklahoma City Community Foundation staff oversees the day-to-day operations of the organization. Administrative Expenses

Economies of scale and a close watch on the budget enable the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to operate at an extremely low cost. We attempt to balance the level of services provided with a cost conscious approach and are pleased to report that administrative expenses over the last five years have averaged just under 40 basis points (40/100 of 1 percent).

Investment Management Costs

The low cost and efficient operation of our investment program benefits all endowments. We accomplish this by using active managers and index funds in a way that maximizes the opportunity for adding value but keeps the costs low. For Fiscal Year 2012, our costs of investments was 37 basis points (37/100 of 1 percent) compared to more than 100 basis points for the average mutual fund or active equity fund manager who requires a large minimum account.

Summary of Our Distribution Policy

Since 1989, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation has employed a distribution policy that is designed to permit funds to capitalize on good investment years as well as protect in the event of a low or negative return market. The experience of the past few years, where returns were on both extremes of investment performance, has proven the wisdom of a policy which stabilizes the effects of market conditions on distributions from an endowment.

Cash distributions from a majority of the endowment funds of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation are based on a spending policy that calls for distributing 5 percent of the fund’s average market value. The remaining investment return is left with the fund to add to the value, which protects the future distribution stream from inflation. The annual distribution from the fund is more predictable because the amount is not tied to current income, which fluctuates due to shifts in market conditions, but is based on a rolling 12-quarter average of the fund’s market value, adjusted for additional contributions.

There is general consensus among large educational and institutional endowment managers across the country that an amount close to 5 percent of the average market value is a safe amount to spend and still provide protection for the principal and allow the income stream to increase with inflation. The 5 percent figure is based upon an estimate of two factors over time: market return and inflation. A conservative prediction of average market return in a balanced fund over time is 8 percent. It is widely expected that inflation will average 3 percent over time. This leaves 5 percent to spend while still protecting the fund’s value for the future. The Investment Committee’s focus on long-term fund growth allows for a bias to equities in the asset allocation. The 5 percent spending rule allows growth to occur even if there are no additional contributions to the endowment fund.

This annual report is printed on Endurance, Forest Stewardship Council certified papers.
The Forest Stewardship Council is the mark of responsible forestry.
Below are highlights since our founding in 1969. The information below represents milestones and/or significant events in the evolution of the organization during the last 43 years. For a more complete history, visit www.occf.org/aboutus.

1969
Oilman and philanthropist John E. Kirkpatrick and eight fellow community leaders founded the Oklahoma City Community Foundation in 1969. The group was spurred into action by the passage of the National Tax Reform Act of 1969 that imposed new restrictions on private foundations. As a result, the considerable tax advantages of contributing to a public community foundation made sense. Endowment funds created by donors could now provide long-term support for charities, scholarships and a variety of community needs as well as meet the charitable goals of the donors. A community foundation would encourage more individuals to create funds to benefit the community.

Florence Ogden Wilson sold a tract of her family’s land to the state and she deeded $50,000 to establish charitable organization endowment funds for five nonprofit organizations. Her gift was the first designated endowment fund gift. See pages 38-47 for more information.

John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick offered the first of the Kirkpatrick Match Challenges that matched funds raised during a defined time period by charitable organizations for their endowment funds. The match raised $740,000 that the Kirkpatricks matched dollar for dollar. The match was in celebration of our 10th anniversary.

1980-89
Oilman W.T. “Bill” Payne was an astute businessman and philanthropist. Following his death in 1981, we received a bequest from Mr. Payne’s estate, the assets of Payne Petroleum that more than doubled the organization’s assets.

Nancy B. Anthony became the fourth executive director in 1985. When she joined the organization, she was the only full-time employee. At the end of Fiscal Year 2012, Mrs. Anthony now oversees a staff of 31 and assets in excess of $632 million.

Following the sale of their food distribution company, William and Margaret Davis, on the advice of their professional advisor, established the first Affiliated Fund in 1987. Read story on page 16.

To help the state celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Land Run of 1889, the Trustees provided grants supporting seven major projects for the Centennial celebration. This initiated a focus on developing new programs.

1990-99
A $1.3 million bequest from Margaret Annis Boys launched a new focus area in beautification of public land and parks in Oklahoma County. Since 1991, the Margaret Annis Boys Trust has awarded more than $1.5 million in grants and allowed us to work with residents and city and county officials to improve public land.

In 1992, the Trustees held the organization’s first ever long range planning process to set forth goals for the future. From this meeting the mission statement was developed and the bylaws were changed to increase the number of Trustees from the original nine to 12.

The After School Options (ASO) Initiative was the first major focus program area initiated by the Trustees in response to a community-wide need for positive activities for youth during non-school hours. For nine years, ASO was a catalyst in bringing together civic, religious and government entities to address the need and create programs that exist today.

April 19, 1995 is a date of significant impact on our community. Our community’s tragedy became the nation’s tragedy and contributions of support immediately poured in. Because of an existing relationship with area nonprofit organizations, we were able to take a lead role in the community’s response and we continue to administer the Oklahoma City Disaster Relief Fund.

In 1998, the Trustee Scholarship Initiative is launched to bring together guidance counselors from high schools in central Oklahoma to enhance their knowledge and resources for their students seeking post-secondary education. The initiative also awards scholarships through five programs. For more information, see page 61.

2000-12
Jeanette L. Gamba was elected the first female president of the Board of Trustees. She would serve three consecutive years in that leadership role.

To address a shortage of qualified nurses for nonprofit hospitals, we established the Nurse Education Program to fund scholarships for nurses employed at the facilities who are seeking certification as a Registered Nurse or a bachelor’s degree in nursing science.

DonorCentral, an online reporting system, was added to our website in 2003 as a resource for donors with permanent Advised Funds so they can review their fund value and gifts made to the fund as well as recommend grants. In 2004, this service was made available to nonprofit organizations with permanent endowment funds so representatives can view fund activity.

During a long range planning session in 2004, the Trustees addressed the need for a new facility to accommodate more services for donors and a growing staff. A Trustee task force located property at North Broadway Avenue between North 10th and 9th streets that was purchased. A competitive selection process led to hiring an architectural firm.

Our founder, John E. Kirkpatrick would not live to see the completion of the new facility. He died on Oct. 3, 2006 at the age of 98. He left behind a legacy of generosity and caring that will have an impact on the community for generations. The family’s history of giving continues through the Kirkpatrick Family Affiliated Fund that is now led by his grandson, Christian K. Keese.

In 2007, the staff relocated to the new 18,000-square-foot facility that features nearly 9,000 square feet of public space available for use by nonprofit organizations and community groups.

To mark our 40th anniversary in 2009, the Trustees provided support for several key projects including Get Reading Oklahoma, an initiative to assist Oklahoma adults in improving their reading, writing and math skills. See page 59.

The introduction of the iFund Grants Program in 2011 provided an opportunity to help meet community needs in three areas: Access to Health Care, Opportunities for Children and Services for Elderly. See pages 48-49.

In 2012, we partnered with GuideStar to make available GiveSmartOKC, a comprehensive online resource for the community. See page 11 for more information.

We ended Fiscal Year 2012 on June 30 with assets in excess of $632 million, the highest year-end market value to date.
