Dear Friends,

2019 was a year of great celebration! Since the Oklahoma City Community Foundation started in 1969, donors have been incredibly generous with their contributions that have built the endowments that support the charitable efforts throughout our community. We wanted to celebrate these gifts with the whole community and give back in a way that was meaningful, permanent and fun.

In January, we announced the recipients of The Great Idea Challenge grants. More than $1 million was awarded to six organizations for programs that are new to the community and will have a lasting impact, much like the Community Foundation was in 1969.

In March, our past and current Trustees gathered for a celebratory dinner, highlighting the contributions of the 68 men and women who have served as Trustees and leaders of our organization throughout the years. John Kirkpatrick was our founder, but the commitment and passion of our leaders ensured the success of his idea.

In May, we dedicated the Oklahoma City Community Foundation River Trail and planted 800 trees along a 3.5-mile stretch of the pedestrian trail on the north side of the Oklahoma River. The trees, wildflowers and benches are a permanent gift with lasting impact for the community.

In June, we offered continuing professional education programs to two important constituencies: professional advisors and high school guidance counselors. Both of these groups are instrumental in the development and delivery of our programs and services.

In September and October, we hosted an interactive art project, the Musical Swings. More than 40,000 children and adults enjoyed a wonderful experience of music, cooperation and laughter in Bicentennial Park at the Civic Center. We were amazed at the participation and joy that this project generated for the whole community.

We finished the year celebrating with the charities that participate in our Charitable Organization Endowment program, hosting a 1969-era themed party for the annual check and report distribution. This program really is a hallmark of our growth and now involves more than 350 charitable groups.

Throughout the year, a series of television and radio commercials and social media campaigns reminded the community of both the history and the breadth of the Community Foundation’s impact and role. We have also created an online archive that will allow the stories of so many of our donors to be accessible to the public for years to come.

This year’s celebration has ignited a new excitement among our Trustees, staff and the Oklahoma City community. We are launching the next 50 years on a great wave of awareness and opportunity. We continue to be appreciative of the donors with whom we work and the charities that provide the services that we support. We look forward to implementing new ideas and programs that will move our community forward into the future.

Steven C. Agee, Trustee Chair
Your Connection to Impactful Giving

At the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, we help pave a path for members of our community to be philanthropic. The generosity of our donors is ongoing and impactful, and directed to organizations whose financials have been vetted. Why? Because we’ve laid the groundwork for better giving. The Community Foundation makes giving easy, beneficial, fulfilling and more personal. We offer a wide variety of tax-wise giving options that help donors give the most, get the most and do the most good throughout our community.

David Gorham is one longtime donor who appreciates the impact that the Community Foundation has helped him make with his charitable gifts.

A California native, David is celebrating his 56th year on the faculty of Casady School. In 2005, he established an advised fund at the Community Foundation that allows him to support several charitable organizations close to his heart, like the cerebral palsy center where his brother lived for more than 50 years, or Casady School, where David discovered his love of teaching.

“Having a single place through which I can donate to so many different organizations makes it very easy,” said David. “Donating appreciated stock is done so easily from my brokerage firms, and then distributions are made with the click of a mouse. It’s also nice to know that when I’m gone, I have given instructions on how to distribute my charitable funds.”

Though he learned the importance of giving back from his parents, David says the Community Foundation has helped him give back in a way that best fits his needs. It’s giving in a way that is easy for him, financially beneficial, meaningful, and most of all, impactful for the community.

For 50 years, Don and Willadean Ramsey have been helping Oklahoma students and FFA chapters raise money through their family-owned Blue & Gold Sausage Company – and leaving quite a legacy along the way.

As an agricultural education teacher, Don knew the struggles of securing funding for youth programs. His fundraising idea of selling breakfast sausage made from student-raised livestock was a success, and 50 years later the Ramsey family’s legacy reaches far beyond blue and gold jackets.

The Ramsey’s oldest son, Brett, says one of his earliest memories is of his father volunteering for the Dale Rogers Training Center, a vocational training and employment center for individuals with disabilities. The Ramseys were instrumental in establishing an endowment fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to support the nonprofit, as well as creating funds benefiting the Oklahoma FFA Foundation and scholarships for students.

“Over the years, we have found that the Community Foundation aligns with our ideals and broad-based approach to supporting education,” Brett Ramsey said. “We appreciate the opportunity to grow our charitable funds and increase the impact of our giving so that everyone benefits. It’s been a meaningful, long-term relationship.”
Affiliated Funds: An Alternative to a Private Foundation

If you are considering creating a private foundation, an affiliated fund at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation is a tax-wise alternative that allows you to maintain involvement while we handle the administrative responsibilities.

Affiliated funds are:

- Similar in structure and function to a private foundation, but with fewer restrictions and favorable tax treatment.

- Considered supporting organizations of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation that operate under separate governing documents and trustees.

- Permanent endowments established with a minimum of $1 million and an annual percentage available for grants to qualified charities as determined by the trustees of the fund.

Affiliated funds currently administered by the Oklahoma City Community Foundation are listed on pages 12, 13 and 32.

When Carolyn Watson established the Rural Oklahoma Community Foundation as an affiliated fund in 1995, her goal was to bring cultural opportunities to rural classrooms and communities. Thanks to a grant from the fund, Oklahoma Shakespeare in the Park’s “Short Shakespeare” does just that. Their touring production of “A Midsummer Night’s Dream” brings live theatre to rural schools while making Shakespeare more accessible to students.

Connecting Your Passion to Purpose

Whether you are interested in creating a charitable fund to support your favorite causes, providing scholarships for students or using assets other than cash to leave a legacy, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation can help you customize the perfect solution for your giving needs. Our professional staff can help translate your values into the right type of fund to carry out your wishes and create a charitable legacy.

When former Oklahoma County District Judge Nancy Coats-Ashley was looking for a way to make a difference, the Community Foundation helped her find the perfect charitable solution. She was familiar with the Community Foundation through her service as a trustee for the Disaster Relief Fund that was established following the 1995 bombing of the Murrah Federal Building.

A longtime advocate for mental health issues, Judge Coats-Ashley was instrumental in the creation of the first mental health court in the southwest United States. Through her experience with defendants who were dealing with mental illness, she recognized the need for an alternative path that could lead to treatment and rehabilitation rather than incarceration.

“The success stories of mental health court graduates are just remarkable,” Judge Coats-Ashley said. “With proper treatment, they are able to return to work and go on to live healthy, productive lives, while also reducing the burden on our criminal justice system.”

The Community Foundation helped Judge Coats-Ashley further her community legacy through the creation of an advised fund that will permanently support causes important to her, like Legal Aid Services of Oklahoma. In addition, she used the remainder of her campaign funds to create a scholarship for graduate students studying mental health services.

To explore the possibilities available to create your customized charitable solution, visit occf.org.

Your Connection to Charitable Solutions

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation partners with estate planners, financial advisors, attorneys and accountants throughout the community to help their clients with charitable planning. We recently sat down with Oklahoma City attorney Kendra Robben to learn more about how she partners with the Community Foundation to better serve her clients.

Tell us about your practice? I practice estate planning and business succession planning at Robben Law PLLC, which I established in 2007. I guide my clients through the estate planning process and help them realize it isn’t a scary process, but can be painless and tax efficient.

How did you become connected with the Oklahoma City Community Foundation? I began working with Joe Carter at the Community Foundation to help a client leave a gift in their will in the most effective and efficient way possible.

How has the Community Foundation helped you help your clients? Working with the Community Foundation has given my clients access to charitable giving vehicles that are beneficial to both the community and to the donor. The Community Foundation’s flexible giving options allow my clients the versatility to make a difference in their personal interest areas, while also leaving a legacy rather than a one-time gift, which is always a great selling point. The Community Foundation helps my clients create the right plan without the pressure of having individual charities directly involved. It also helps them relax and open up about their overall goals in a much more honest and productive way.

For 37 years, Charles McCauley served as an educator and advocate of public education, paving the way for many minority students and teachers at Oklahoma City Public Schools. When McCauley passed away in 2015, his family knew the only way to truly honor his legacy was to establish a scholarship fund that would support aspiring teachers and educators on their journey into the classroom.

Within the same year, the Charles B. McCauley Scholarship Fund was established to support central Oklahoma high school graduates who intend to pursue a career in education. But his wife and fellow activist, Earlene McCauley, didn’t rest there. With the holiday season approaching, she reached out to friends and former colleagues, successfully soliciting more than 85 individual contributions from across the country. Thanks to their network’s generosity and Earlene’s strategic efforts, the Charles B. McCauley Scholarship is now an endowed fund and will provide an annual award to one future Oklahoma teacher in perpetuity.

Earlene and Charles’ daughter Amber Williams represents the second generation of support for Oklahoma teachers. She makes contributing to her father’s legacy a priority by setting up an automated monthly donation. “With the fund, we want to encourage students to pursue a career in teaching and to not decide against it due to financial reasons,” Amber says. “It’s now more important than ever to help teachers get a good start in the field and to ensure they stay in teaching.”
With appreciation for their lasting contributions to the community, we remember the following:

Charles (Charlie) Robert Ashley (1939-2018)
A U.S. Navy veteran, Charlie Ashley had a long career in public affairs for AT&T, working in the Washington, D.C., office. After moving to Oklahoma City with his wife, Judge Nancy Coats-Ashley, he grew to love his adopted home. In addition to his professional endeavors in the areas of consulting and environmental services management, higher education and real estate, he also contributed his time and talents to a number of civic and community affairs.

Thomas Dean Barbour Sr. (1928-2019)
Fresh from the U.S. Air Force, Thomas Barbour went to work for Allied Materials Company in 1953. During his 37-year career with the company, he rose to the rank of chairman and CEO, cultivating a reputation of fairness and integrity that extended beyond the office. In 2006, Thomas and wife, Charlene, established the Thomas D. & Charlene Barbour Fund to support charitable causes important to them.

Kerry Michael Barnett (1955-2019)
Kerry Barnett’s vocal talent took him around the world, eventually landing in Oklahoma City where he became director of worship and music ministries at Westminster Presbyterian Church and grew the choir to an international presence. In 2014, to honor his late wife, he helped establish the Marilee Barnett Inner Voice Foundation Fund to support access to youth music educational programs.

Amber Wooton Clark (1977-2018)
A native of Woodward, Oklahoma, Amber Wooton-Clark became a successful and beloved academic advisor, English teacher and librarian. While living in Sacramento, California, Amber impacted the lives of countless library patrons, youth and co-workers through her innovative programs. She advocated for education, the arts and literacy and the accessibility to these opportunities, winning the hearts of those around her. Following her death, friends and family established a scholarship for Woodward High School students in her honor.

James “Jim” Cobb (1931-2018)
A U.S. Marine veteran and Oklahoma State University alumnus, Jim Cobb led the engineering company built by his father for nearly 50 years. At the helm of Cobb Engineering, he was instrumental in a number of civil engineering and transportation projects including the Centennial Plaza at the Oklahoma State Capitol. A passionate supporter of OSU, he helped establish the OSU Posse Club, led the OSU Alumni Association to expand nationwide and was inducted into the OSU Alumni Hall of Fame. He and his wife, LaVerna, established the James D. & LaVerna L. Cobb Scholarship to support students attending the OSU School of Civil and Environmental Engineering.

LaVerna Cobb (1934-2018)
LaVerna Cobb lived her life with a servant’s heart. For more than 60 years, she lived and worked alongside her husband, Jim. Together, they were passionate about family, community and Oklahoma State University. Inseparable throughout life, LaVerna died just 11 days following Jim’s death. Her legacy will live on through the James D. & LaVerna L. Cobb Scholarship for the OSU School of Civil and Environmental Engineering.

Dr. Jacqueline Cook (1934-2018)
Longtime professor at the OU Health Sciences Center, Dr. JaQuie Cook served as a mentor to countless students, physicians and social workers. She believed in serving her community by offering her knowledge and skills to a number of organizations. Ensuring her service will continue to benefit others, she established the Jacqueline B. Cook Fund to support Cavett Kids Foundation that provides camps and programs for children with life-threatening and chronic illnesses.

Douglas R. Cummings (1929-2018)
Oil and gas businessman Doug Cummings got his start as a geological engineer at Kirkpatrick Oil Company, becoming a close friend and mentee of John Kirkpatrick. From the back office, he started Cummings Oil Company and became an engaged member of the community contributing his time and resources to a number of civic organizations. The longest-serving board member of the Kirkpatrick Family Fund, Doug and his wife, Peggy, also established the Douglas R. and Peggy J. Cummings Fund to ensure their charitable support of the community continues.

Bobby Gene Knapp (1936-2019)
For 28 years, Col. Bobby Knapp traveled the world as a personnel officer for the U.S. Air Force. After retiring, he began a second career as executive director for the Oklahoma County Bar Association, becoming an engaged member of the community. His legacy will continue through the Bobby and Donna Knapp Fund and Donna Vandiver Knapp Piano and Voice Scholarship.

Don Malzahn (1945-2019)
After earning his Ph.D. in engineering from Oklahoma State University, Dr. Don Malzahn became a devoted professor at Wichita State University. His experience on the board of directors for the family company, Charles Machine Works, taught him the importance of community and led him to become a powerful advocate for women in STEM and individuals with disabilities.

Darin McBride (1966-2019)
A graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Darin McBride built his career in the oil industry, but his wife, Heather, and their six children were his greatest passion. He particularly loved coaching his sons’ Little League teams, combining his love of football and family. Following his death, family and friends established the Darin McBride Memorial Scholarship to perpetuate his legacy.

Melvin McCurdy (1927-2018)
Melvin McCurdy was a true cowboy. He spent his childhood riding bulls and breaking horses before shifting his interests to cars and motorcycles. A gifted mechanic and machinist, he served as the personal mechanic for Lincoln Mercury’s Fred Jones and maintained Halliburton’s equipment. His spirit and devotion to his community will live on through the Melvin and Ruth McCurdy Fund he and his wife established to support military families.

Mary Lou Miles (1921-2019)
A longtime educator, Mary Lou Miles taught in Oklahoma City Public Schools for more than 20 years before joining the Oklahoma State Department of Education where her experience and leadership helped guide countless school districts through the process of desegregation. Her daughters Judge Vicki Miles-LaGrange and Gayle Miles-Scott established the Charles C. and Mary Lou Miles Scholarship to perpetuate their family’s passion for education.
With appreciation for their lasting contributions to the community, we remember the following:

In Memoriam

Phillip Napier (1939-2019)
Phillip Napier loved his community. His work days were spent providing leadership to our public schools while he devoted his free time to his beloved Heritage Hills neighborhood. For more than 40 years, he advocated for the landscape and maintenance of the historic areas. A memorial fund in his honor will continue this legacy.

Kenneth Nash (1930-2018)
For more than 60 years, Ken Nash served as an Oklahoma City police officer and attorney. In addition to helping obtain the city’s first police helicopter, he was a founding member of the Oklahoma City Police Association and a passionate supporter of the Mental Health Association of Oklahoma. His legacy will live on through these organizations.

Mittie Nickles (1920-2019)
Born in Snyder, Oklahoma, Mittie Nickles spent her adult life working for the Internal Revenue Departments in Oklahoma City and Muskogee, but she never forgot her small town roots. Through the Mittie R. Nickles Scholarship, her estate continues to support students from rural Oklahoma wishing to follow in her footsteps and study accounting.

Shirley Shanker (1928-2019)
A longtime congregant and supporter of Emanuel Synagogue, Shirley Shanker found her passion and community impact through her volunteerism. In addition to coordinating the school volunteer program for Oklahoma City Public Schools, she also helped launch the Support Center of Oklahoma, which later became the Oklahoma Center for Nonprofits, and was a long-serving board member of the Oklahoma City National Memorial Foundation. Her support of the community continues through funds established through the Oklahoma City Jewish Community Foundation.

Ruby Smith (1931-2018)
A wife, mother and business woman, Ruby Smith owned a variety of laundromats and rental properties in northeast Oklahoma City, while also serving as a member of the Oklahoma State Pardon and Parole Board and running her church food pantry. Her legacy will continue through the Robert V. and Ruby Mae Smith Scholarship.

Dr. James Yoch (1938 – 2018)
With a unique blend of passions, Dr. James Yoch was not just a demanding and energizing professor, but he brought a new perspective blending art, literature and landscape design to bring unseen beauty to everything around him. He and wife, Nancy, established the Yoch Family Trust to support charitable causes important to their family.

Susan Harkness (1952-2019)

For more than 40 years, Susan Harkness built her career in advertising and marketing. In her role as brand manager for OG&E, she cultivated a reputation for creative strategies and became an industry leader. For many years, she was an avid volunteer for numerous community organizations, earning recognition throughout the city for her contributions, but it was the Heather Harkness Memorial Volleyball Tournament that was most dear to her heart. Following the unexpected loss of her daughter in 2008, Susan and her husband, David, established the tournament as a way to honor Heather’s memory. Through the funds raised, they established a memorial fund that supports a scholarship for graduating seniors of Edmond Santa Fe High School who reflect and honor the memory, life and legacy of Heather. Memorial gifts in honor of Susan will ensure this mother and daughter’s legacy continues to live on.

When Ruby Mae Smith established the Robert V. Smith Scholarship fund in 1999, it was to honor her late husband, Robert. After her death in 2018, Ruby was added to the name of the scholarship by her son, Lenardo Smith, as a tribute to both parents.

“When you lose someone you deeply care about, you wonder what’s the best way to remember them. It can be overwhelming and intimidating,” Lenardo said. With plans to grow the scholarship’s annual awards, he turned to the Oklahoma City Community Foundation for guidance and support.

One of Smith’s greatest concerns was the amount of impact he would be able to create with what he was able to give. He learned that the Community Foundation works with every donor to design an individual path toward endowment while taking care of every detail along the way.

The impact speaks for itself. In the 2018-19 school year, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation’s scholarship program helped more than 800 Oklahoma students realize their academic success. And with a competitive university graduation rate of 71.65% for bachelor’s and associate degrees, our scholars are among the top students in their field.

The Robert V. and Ruby Mae Smith Scholarship is one of 183 permanently-endowed scholarships at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation that will support students in perpetuity.

In 2019, Harding Charter Preparatory High School graduate Alisha Hemani received the scholarship, helping her pursue a biology degree at the University of Oklahoma. “As a daughter of immigrant parents, I have seen my parents work hard to give my family a comfortable life,” Hemani said. “They inspired me to work hard and to keep my head up, and by continuing my education I hope to one day give back to them.”

Established in 1998 to encourage more students in central Oklahoma to attend college, the Trustee Scholarship Initiative consists of four scholarship programs and a training program for guidance counselors. Recipients include underserved college-bound students who may not qualify for top academic awards, students who will be the first in their family to attend college, foster care youth and students studying nursing.

Your Connection to Local Charities

Throughout the last 50 years, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation’s Charitable Organization Endowment program has enhanced stability and credibility for charities serving Oklahoma. The invested endowment funds provide charities with a stable source of perpetual income, offering annual support for their operating budgets and expanding critical programs for the development of our community. In addition to demonstrating planned long-term stability, an endowment also allows nonprofits to broaden their source of support by offering a way for donors to give complex assets and leave estate gifts to perpetuate their charitable priorities.

One organization that illustrates the impact of endowment on a nonprofit is Friends of Libraries in Oklahoma (FOLIO), which provides resources to strengthen Oklahoma public libraries. Although it’s a small organization, FOLIO is vital to the literacy development of communities throughout our state. A decade ago, FOLIO realized the need for perpetual income to sustain its mission and established the Friends of Libraries in Oklahoma Fund at the Community Foundation. By promoting gifts to their endowment and regularly participating in the Kirkpatrick Family Fund’s Matching Endowment Grant Program, FOLIO has grown its fund from $8,000 to more than $100,000, generating annual distributions of nearly $5,000 back to the organization.

“Our annual Mother’s Day campaign has contributed to the success of our endowment,” explained Sharon Saulmon, board chair of FOLIO. “Through the campaign, we ask our supporters to give a gift in memory of someone who has strengthened their love of reading, such as a parent or grandparent.”

Like FOLIO, their Mother’s Day campaign is simple and effective. Gifts received from the campaign help carry out the mission of the organization and support our state’s libraries in perpetuity. It’s a great reminder of how a little bit can go a long way.

Starting as an indoor baseball game in 1887, softball has become one of the most popular team sports in the United States. USA Softball, the national governing body for the sport, offers people of all ages the opportunity to play the game at a variety of levels and currently boasts more than 120,000 teams with 2 million players nationwide from adults to youth. Headquartered in Oklahoma City at the National Softball Hall of Fame and Museum, USA Softball also trains and promotes six national teams that compete as Team USA.

In 2018, USA Softball established four charitable organization endowment funds at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to create a steady funding stream, providing annual support to the national team programs.

“The Community Foundation’s reputation and experience made them a natural choice,” chief executive officer Craig Cress said. “Through our endowment, we can establish a solid foundation for our national teams and give donors confidence in the longevity of their gift.”
Through our community program initiatives, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation strives to connect donor resources with community needs to achieve greater impact. By providing leadership on diverse community issues, we help donors discover how their charitable dollars can do the most good.

At the Community Foundation, we’re actively engaged in a wide range of initiatives that are driven by the charitable interests of our donors, the changing needs of the community and the leadership of our Trustees. These initiatives bring together diverse individuals and groups with specialized expertise to collaborate on common issues. Together, we create effective solutions that benefit the whole community.

Connecting donor resources to community needs
At the Oklahoma City Community Foundation, we believe a little homework goes a long way to help make more informed charitable giving decisions. Donors in central Oklahoma can use GiveSmartOKC.org to learn more about local charities that fit their interests, helping decide where their charitable dollars will have the most impact. Users can search a list of more than 300 charitable organizations on GiveSmartOKC.org, using keywords to search by interest area, program categories or geographic region.

GiveSmartOKC.org promotes nonprofit transparency, helping charitable organizations tell their story and boost awareness of their impact. Free for the public to use and free for charities to participate, GiveSmartOKC.org allows local charities to better connect with donors and other funders throughout the community.

“GiveSmartOKC is an amazing resource not only for donors or prospective donors, but nonprofits as well. With individuals seeking more information to help them determine who to make a charitable gift to, this is a robust resource. Having our financials, organizational leadership, program descriptions, along with our community impact in one place, allows us to connect with prospective donors any time of day.”

The Oklahoma City Community Foundation’s investment in our city’s parks and public spaces connects back to 1991, when an Oklahoma City schoolteacher named Margaret Annis Boys designated a $1.5 million gift in her estate to help beautify public lands in Oklahoma County. This gift created the Margaret Annis Boys Trust, which has been a catalyst for additional charitable gifts and community support of our Parks & Public Space Initiative.

Today, the program has awarded more than $3.5 million in grants for hundreds of beautification projects. The collaborative impact can be seen throughout central Oklahoma, from the Margaret Annis Boys Arboretum at Will Rogers Park to neighborhood schools, parks and trails that have become a hub of activity for many families.

Through this work, we have developed valuable partnerships with city and state government agencies, teaming up to strengthen the infrastructure of our community’s parks and greenspaces. We’ve collaborated with the City of Oklahoma City and helped fund projects such as a long-term plan for the city’s park system and a comprehensive tree inventory of public parks.

Most recently, we joined together with Oklahoma Forestry Services and the Association of Central Oklahoma Governments (ACOG) to commission a tree canopy assessment of the Oklahoma City Metropolitan Area that will provide invaluable baseline data for managing the city’s urban forest. The cumulative results of the study will help the city shape its approach to environmental sustainability including air quality and stormwater runoff planning, as well as the location and type of trees that will be planted going forward.

“We will be able to use what we learned through the study to help plan future tree plantings for parks, school campuses and trails,” said Brian Dougherty, director of the Parks & Public Space Initiative. “By measuring and monitoring the urban tree canopy, we can proactively combat potential threats that can lead to tree canopy loss, and strategically improve our community’s tree cover over time.”

Many factors influence community health and wellness, from socioeconomic and environmental conditions to access to quality health care and nutritious food. When the Oklahoma City Community Foundation Trustees launched our Wellness Initiative in 2014, we identified healthy lifestyle behaviors as one area where we could make the greatest impact.

Through the Wellness Initiative, we work together with community partners to promote healthy lifestyles throughout central Oklahoma. By convening these multi-sector partners through the Central Oklahoma Wellness Alliance, we identify opportunities to collaborate, leverage resources and expand the reach and impact of existing wellness programs.

“Attending the Wellness Alliance meetings has increased my awareness of community resources,” said Gaylene Stiles, Mercy Hospital Regional Director of Community Health & Access. “Discussions of ways to improve the health status of Oklahoma City ignite the idea that success is achievable. I leave the meetings feeling reenergized and positive.”

The 50-plus organizations that participate in the Wellness Alliance work together to connect people to low-cost, easily accessible physical activities. GetMovingOKC.org serves as a central, online hub to promote these community-wide activities to encourage individuals to be more active and start on the path to a healthier lifestyle. The easily searchable website features a calendar of local events and activities including free fitness classes, group bike rides, walks, runs and guided hikes. In addition, you can find great places to get moving with a directory of public trails and parks located throughout Oklahoma City.

Our goal at the Oklahoma City Community Foundation is to help donors help the community in the areas they most value. While every donor has their own story of why they give, their areas of interest often overlap. In 2011, the Community Foundation established a series of iFund grants that support common charitable causes among our donors. The charitable funds that support our iFund grants come from a variety of donors whose gifts were designated to support a specific charitable interest, including services for children, elderly and access to health care.

Senior independence is one cause common among our donors. Our Services for the Elderly iFund grants are awarded to programs that help keep seniors safe and living in their own homes, like RSVP of Central Oklahoma’s Provide-A-Ride Medical Transportation. The program received a $20,000 iFund grant to provide safe transportation to medical appointments for low-income seniors.

“Our volunteer drivers accompany our clients to their medical appointments, wait for them, drive them by the pharmacy when needed and safely deliver the clients back home,” said Beth Patterson, executive director of RSVP. “More than just drivers, our volunteers are also caring older adults who give the gift of companionship and friendship to so many elderly persons who live alone.”

Kirkpatrick Family Fund

John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick established the Kirkpatrick Family Fund in 1989 as an affiliated fund of the Oklahoma City Community Foundation. As the Community Foundation celebrates its 50th year of operation, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund is celebrating its 30th year of grant-making, made possible by the philanthropic vision and commitment of our founders.

Since its inception, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund has distributed more than $103,249,900 to carry out its mission. Under the stewardship of their grandson, Christian Keesee, and the board of trustees, the Family Fund continues to honor the Kirkpatricks’ vision by employing their guiding principles. This foresight continues to guide decisions in the use of grant resources that support a diverse array of cultural, civic and social priorities in central Oklahoma.

The funding interests of the Kirkpatrick Family Fund reflect the importance our founders placed on improving the whole community. Leadership and integrity of the individuals and the nonprofits addressing issues of community concern and quality of life remains foremost in funding decisions.

Grants approved in Fiscal Year 2019 are diverse in terms of interest and support the broad needs of central Oklahoma. Additionally, the Kirkpatrick Family Fund has invested significant resources to areas of specific interest including endowments for nonprofits, a new contemporary arts center, arts education, community development through the arts and the prevention of teen pregnancy.

In the 1995 biography “John & Eleanor: A Sense of Community,” Max J. Nichols reflected on the vision, as well as personal and financial contributions of the Kirkpatricks:

“The ‘most fortunate’ of all were the people of their hometown. Without exception, all the major projects initiated and led by the Kirkpatricks became permanent fixtures in the cultural, scientific and civic structure of Oklahoma City.”

In the closing paragraphs of the biography Nichols writes, “To John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick, thousands of people who have benefited from their ‘worthwhile’ projects could summarize their appreciation with that cherished old Navy expression, ‘Well Done!’”

From October 2019 through March 2019, Kirkpatrick Family Fund grantee Oklahoma Contemporary hosted Erwin Redl: Whiteout at Campbell Art Park, an outdoor art installation featuring a grid of 550 suspended LED bulbs that moved in tandem with the surrounding environment. On March 23, the installation concluded with a performance of Trumpet Clouds, a 60-minute live-installation composed by Craig Shepard and performed by the Oklahoma State University Trumpet Studio. Whiteout was sponsored by the Oklahoma City Community Foundation in celebration of its 50th anniversary.
